District 34 to collect impact fees from unincorporated developers

By Ginny Skweres

Staff Reporter

District 34 and Lake County have signed an intergovernmental agreement that will allow the district to collect impact fees from developers in unincorporated areas of the district. The village collects the impact fees from builders, but the county had no such program in place.

Vicky Cullinan, associate superintendent of Elementary School District 34, talked with Lake County Board member Bonnie Thompson-Carter, who agreed the schools deserved some help in collecting the fees. All schools are in need of funding, and this is a new way for the school to collect in a timely manner.

Developers and builders must apply for building permits as they progress in building a residential property. The new intergovernmental agreement will require builders to have a receipt from the school district indicating the proper fees have been paid.

Cullinan said the district was asking for help with the developers.

"I'm grateful to the county for the system of checks and balances," Cullinan said. "This is a great step forward for the district."

Now that the agreement is in place, other school districts will be able to take advantage of the same situation in their districts, Cullinan said. They will simply need to sign an intergovernmental agreement with the county.

This year the cost to educate each pupil is $7,569. This is more than last year, but below the state average.

"We're doing a great job in our teaching and learning," Superintendent Scott Thompson said. "We'll still be in the bottom quarter (in cost) in the county."

Antioch police catch armed robber

By Ginny Skweres

Staff Reporter

Early Sunday afternoon the two people working at Dominos Pizza on Route 173 in Antioch were shocked to see a woman walk in with a 12-gauge single-barrel shotgun pointed at the manager of the store.

Linda J. Woodard, 45, of 506 Jante Drive, Burlington, Wis., brandished the weapon and demanded money from the cash register. A second employee walked in, but Woodard left when she had the money.

The store manager called the police and the second employee observed her van and license plate number. He got into his car and followed the van at a distance. The police stayed in contact with the store manager. Knowing the direction she was headed was a big help to police, Antioch Police Chief Chuck Fagan said.

Officers William Splitt and Mark

Stahl observed the van as it turned southbound on Route 83. They pulled her over and ordered her out of the vehicle. With their guns drawn, they ordered her to lie down on the ground and handcuffed her.

Officer Dawn Geraty assisted with the arrest and found the stolen money when she patted Woodard down. The other officers searched her van and found the shotgun, which was cocked but unloaded, and a pipe used for smoking crack cocaine.

Downtown Antioch is ready to grow

By Ginny Skweres

Staff Reporter

The merchants in downtown Antioch are an energetic and determined group. How else could you explain why 96 percent of them met at 6:30 a.m. one day last week? That's how many came when invited to the special meeting by Antioch Community Director Claude LeMere.

The downtown area will be receiving 25 percent of the tax revenue generated by the new businesses on the Route 173 corridor. LeMere wanted to make two points to the group at a time when funding would become available. He stressed this is a time for the merchants to work together and know that each of them should not think of themselves as isolated store owners, but as a group that can support and help one another grow.

Clean out your car, bottle up the cans for recycling

If you're tired of listening to the cans and bottles roll on the floor of your car every time you turn a corner, a solution is coming.

Giant bottle-shaped recycling containers will soon appear at area convenience stores as part of a new program coordinated by the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County (SWALCO), giving motorists the chance to recycle their bottles and cans instead of throwing them out.

The partnership between municipalities, local businesses and SWALCO will help Lake County reach the 50 percent recycling goal set in the 2004 Solid Waste Management Plan. To demonstrate SWALCO's ongoing commitment to recycling, the agency is paying for the containers and the collection service. Eventually, 20 of the five-foot high bottles will be placed at four or five locations as part of a two-year pilot project.

Regional bus service for Seniors set to roll soon

The red, white and black bus was parked outside of a senior citizens building in Fox Lake, giving residents there a chance to check out their new mode of transportation.

Township Transit is the name of the new service to be offered soon thanks to cooperation from Grant, Lake Villa and Antioch townships. Officials made the rounds of various senior center sites one afternoon, explaining the program. Seniors will call 847-265-RIDE to schedule their appointments.

"It's a wonderful idea," said Jackie Roeber after she visited the bus.

"It will be great. I'll use it to go shopping and the doctor's," said Betty Joachim.

"It will be a destination-driven service. But it will also be a social benefit," said Dan Venturi, Lake Villa township supervisor.

Grant set aside $10,000 in the budget this fiscal year for this service. The former PACE bus only cost $2,500.

"It will be an evolving service," said Kay Starostovic, Grant Township supervisor, during an appearance at Lilac Apartments. "We will be working for what is best for the majority of people."

Expected places of destination could be Hawthorn shopping center, Gurnee Mills or the Super Wal-Mart in Antioch. The township staff asks 24 hours notice for a trip. The trips will cost $1 each way.

"They all seem to be pretty excited about it," Starostovic said.

The bus will be driven by part-time drivers, the supervisors said.

Starostovic explained the role of township government in general at a Fox Lake Chamber of Commerce and Industry luncheon.

"Each day is a new challenge. The three functions of township government are the General Assistance for the indigent, maintenance of roads and bridges not in towns, assessment of real estate. I'm starting my third year here and, as Bill Brumbach says, "it is a work in progress," Starostovic said.

Grant has its Field of Dreams recreation and township center off Molitor Road. It is well used by the Fox Lake Fire soccer, Lakeland Cardinals football teams and cheerleaders and the general public. A fund-raising event, picnic in the park, takes place each August.

Starostovic, the former town clerk, was appointed supervisor when Gordon Kiesgen died in 2002.

Grant has an area of 23 square miles. Its 123 lakes and 15 ponds contain 3,130 acres of water. The lakes, wholly or partially in Grant Township are Fox, Nippersink, Pistakee, Long, Duck, Fish, Redhead Brandenburg, Sullivan, Wooster, Kings and Lure.

Services run the gamut in the supervisor's office. From vehicle stickers to Rules of the Road classes, a tot lot and picnic shelters; passes for seniors for PACE, taxi, discount, RTA and Metra; Adopt-a-Family, Christmas Food Baskets; plant-a-row center; meeting room for Grant Township residents; absentee voting and notary services.

The township center complex is at 26725 W. Molitor Road in Ingleside. For more information, call 847-740-2233.

Keep your Halloween safe this year

The Antioch Fire Department has tips to help keep children safe on Halloween.

A child's excitement over dressing up, or going out with friends to trick-o-treat can cause both the parents and the children to forget some very important safety tips. Listed below are tips that parents and children alike can share in:

Costumes should be highly visible, including the use of a reflective vest or safety strobe, both of which can easily be found at a local hardware shop or fitness store.

If your child's costume requires the use of a prop, such as a sword, make sure it is made of a material that would bend under pressure in case of a fall.

If you are going to have a Jack-o-Lantern out where children will be, make sure it will not accidentally catch a costume on fire.

Remind your children to NEVER get into a car with a stranger, and NEVER talk to stranger.

Remind your child to look both ways before crossing the road, and use sidewalks whenever possible.

Parents should accompany their children whenever possible.

Anyone needing further information regarding these or any other safety information can contact the Antioch Fire Department at 847-395-5511

New school technology can be useful

District 34 is using technology in a new way this year, which should make it easier for parents, teachers and students to know exactly how a student is doing in school.

David Downing, technology guru of District 34, presented the highlights of the new software program at a recent school board meeting.

"The first year of a new system is difficult, but this is a phenomenal product for kids and parents.

The system, Power School, keeps track of each student's attendance and grades, broken down by assignments. Students and parents can assess their grades and homework.

The system also has a spot for teacher comments. Power School saves each semester's grade information, allowing students and parents to track the progress.

In the future, the system will allow class registration online.

"This program has millions of features," Downing said. "It's real-time calculation and once you do it, it's on line." -By Ginny Skweres

Antioch Police Deputy Chief Ron Roth shows the department's new fingerprinting machine that will send fingerprints of suspects directly to the Illinois State Police. The $40,000 machine was purchased through grant money.

Faster fingerprints yield faster results

Identix offers immediate results

By Ginny Skweres

Staff Reporter

The Antioch Police Department has a new high-tech device that allows officers to take fingerprints without using ink. The new device, called Identix by Life Scan is able to scan fingers, and palms, on a glass top. The system is so "smart" that it will tell officers immediately if each individual fingerprint is not clear and needs to be done again.

"The prints are sent to the state via the Internet and we can know the results in two hours in what used to take two weeks," Deputy Chief Ron Roth said.

"This is a benefit for us because some people will give false names or no name at all," he said.

For instance, one local department arrested a man on an outstanding warrant, but he insisted he wasn't the man. They kept him in custody for two weeks before they got the results that verified he was telling the truth, Roth said.

The department was able to get the $40,000 system because Roth had applied for a grant from the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority and the department received nearly $30,000. Antioch was one of many departments that applied for the grant but it was selected because they met the requirements and fingerprint more than 500 suspects or crime scenes a year, showing the need is there.

"It's going to be a really great tool for us, and today that's what police work is all about - technology," Roth said. "This is the probably the most up-to-date system there is." Chief Fagan described it as the "Cadillac" of systems.

In the future, the system could be updated to match the fingerprints with a mug shot, Roth said.

"This is the first week the system is up and running, and the state is able to respond," he said.

This is not the first grant the department has received, due in large part because Roth takes the time and persistence to apply for them. Most come from the U.S. Justice Department, he said.

"We've been very lucky with grants," Roth said.

The Identix is located in the booking room where suspects are taken when they arrive at the station in a squad car. The police garage opens to the booking room, which also has a camera arranged to take mug shots, as well as surveillance cameras that show the entire room. There is also an adjacent holding cell, if needed.

OUR TOWN

Antioch woman willing to take contributions to hurricane victims

Gayle Korczyk of Antioch is preparing for another trip to Waveland, Miss., which was hit by both hurricanes Katrina and Rita, leaving very little of the town. Korczyk was there for two weeks shortly after the first hurricane hit and set up a kitchen where she cooked food for hundreds of people.

Korczyk will again man the kitchen duties, but there is a big need for food and a restaurant-style can opener. Korczyk said the Waveland Café, as it is called, has the greatest need for fresh fruit and vegetables, spices and beef or pork. Someone has made it possible for the Café to have the use of a refrigerated truck and a freezer truck, which helps a great deal.

Waveland was one of the towns on the Gulf that was hit the hardest, Korczyk said, and it has no restaurants and no stores. The command post of the city is the Wal-Mart parking lot that they treat with bleach every day to avoid the spread of disease.

Anyone who would like to contribute to this effort can make an appointment to drop things off by calling her at 847-395-6960 or 847-828-4250. She is willing to take things to Waveland when she leaves on or about Nov. 1.

District #34 is putting together a Publicity Committee and they need volunteers from the community. Scott Thompson, District 34 superintendent, would be the person to contact for questions. With a large district many ears are needed to pass on the good news that comes out of the schools. For those who are "in the know" and have the time, give the district a call at 847-838-8400.

Earlier this week Grass Lake School celebrated White Sox Day. It's hard to say if that had anything to do with three straight wins, but it certainly didn't hurt. Go White Sox! Thanks to all the parents washing all of the hopefully still white socks.

This has been Red Ribbon week, that explains why the village is sprouting red ribbons all over, especially at the schools. This is the time to educate, and thereby protect, our young people from being sucked into the ravages of doing drugs.

The week is also a remembrance of a Drug Enforcement Agent who lost her life while fighting drugs.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town" call staff reporter Ginny Skweres at 847-223-8161, ext. 154 or e-mail, ginnys@lakelandmedia.com

Glass fusion is a good thing, and you can learn how to do it

Store offers unique, handmade jewelry

By Ginny Skweres
Staff Reporter

Aside from its very practical usage, glass can be used artistically in unusual ways when it is melted at about 1500 degrees.

Dawn Revenaugh of the Glass Palette and owner of DJR Originals in wearable glass began making jewelry as a hobby, but couldn't wear it all. However, she was frequently complimented on her work, and the idea for a business was born.

Revenaugh has a large variety of glass and she can fuse it in two ways. The first is a tack fuse that holds one piece of glass to another, and the second is a full fuse, which makes the glass melt into one piece.

"I take each piece as very special and will put it back (in the kiln) several times. That shows depth," she said.

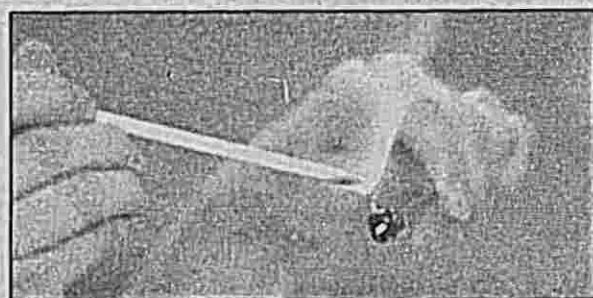

Some of the tools of her trade include a glass saw that cuts glass but not hands, a glass sander and a kiln. Smaller tools include tweezers to pick up very tiny pieces of glass to be used as accents, special glue and the "hardware" to make a piece into a pendant or a pin. Each piece is one-of-a-kind.

She works in a large bright studio on Route 45, which can handle up to six students at a time. Tina Smith, of Lotus Woods Glass, also uses the studio, but her glass creations are beads that she creates in the flame of a tank of propane gas. She also has tools unique to her art. Smith uses a long ceramic rod to hold and turn in the flame, along with a piece of string glass. As it melts the glass, it takes on a round shape. By letting the molten ball of glass cool slightly, she can use a cooler flame to attach other glass to the bead, such as a rose petal made with a different color of glass that she melts onto the bead.

When the bead is complete, Smith puts the rod and the bead between layers of a fiberglass blanket. This allows the bead to cool more slowly, preventing it from cracking. To get the bead off the rod, Smith soaks it in water and gently twists it off.

"This is why hand-made beads are so expensive, because they are labor intensive," Smith said. Some beads come from China, but they don't have the shine and they look like they were made quickly, she said.

"It's a labor of love," Smith said.

Much of the glass they use was made for stained glass, which they buy from a wholesaler.

"We're like kids in a candy shop when we're there," Smith said. She became interested in glass after 20 years as an engineer and a two-year recovery period from cancer. She began with stained glass until she discovered a book on beading.

By going down a short path from the studio, the route leads to the Glass Palette, a stained glass studio owned and operated by Bill Muzak. Walking through the studio, one can't help but be amazed at the colorful designs hanging and those tucked away. Many of the partially complete pieces and the works of art were done by students. Muzak spends his time repairing pieces of stained glass or doing custom work.

All three artists offer classes in their particular field. One-day jewelry classes began this week. Call Revenaugh at 847-356-3023, or sign up on line at DJR323@SBCGLOBAL.

Muzak's open studio can accommodate four to six students at a time in his basic or advanced classes, which meet for six weeks. More information is available by calling 847-356-5719.

There is a possibility that a glass-blower may open some space in the same small area that overlooks a wooded area. If that would happen, certainly the area just south of the Millburn Historic area would become the art glass center of Lindenhurst, if not Lake County.

Still time to find the perfect pumpkin

Farm bureau encourages buying locally

With just a few days to go before Halloween, the Lake County Farm Bureau reminds ghosts and goblins that there is still plenty of time to find that perfect jack-o-lantern.

With over 12,500 acres grown on 475 farms devoted to pumpkins, Illinois is the leading producer in the nation when it comes to pumpkins, bringing in a cash crop of $15.8 million last year alone, said Lake County Farm Bureau Manager Gregory Koeppen.

"While the extreme drought conditions worried many farmers in July and August, consumers still have a large supply of pumpkins and other fall grown decorations to select from this Halloween," Koeppen said.

While carving pumpkins is a highlight for many families in Lake County, the large jack-o-lanterns many are familiar with may be a little harder to find this season.

"Although there is a good supply, consumers may notice the average size of pumpkins at the local patch are slightly smaller than in years past," Koeppen said.

He encourages consumers to visit roadside farm stands when selecting that perfect pumpkin this week.

More than 90-percent of the nation's processed pumpkins are grown in Illinois. Prices for pumpkins can range anywhere from 50 cents to $50 and higher depending on the size and shape.

When selecting that perfect pumpkin, Koeppen offers the following advice:

Determine the size that will best fit your decorating plan. A porch display might feature a trio of pumpkins one large, one medium, and one small. Or, you might want a group of smaller pumpkins to display on a railing or windowsill.

Look for pumpkins that are very fresh and firm.

Avoid pumpkins that may have bruised or soft areas, as well as any that have cuts or other visible blemishes.

Pumpkins can be any color from light yellow-orange to bright orange. They also come in white and sage green. While color variations are not critical, you may prefer the look of one over another and may wish to match the color of several pumpkins if they will be displayed as a group. Smooth skinned pumpkins are generally easier to draw on and carve, though craggy exteriors can also make effective and sinister-looking creations.

Does the pumpkin sit straight on a hard surface? This will be critical unless you decide to cut off the bottom and scrape the seeds out from that opening. In this case a slight tilt can easily be corrected once the bottom is removed.

Set all of the pumpkins you plan to purchase on a flat surface such as a driveway or table to see how they look together and make sure they sit straight.

Choose pumpkins with at least one good side to display on a porch or window. Select pumpkins that look good from all angles if it will be used as a centerpiece.

Millburn sixth-graders take an adventure on the wild side

By Ginny Skweres
Staff Reporter

Sixth-graders from Millburn School and Millburn West School traveled to Camp Timber-lee in Wisconsin to spend three days enjoying outdoor education. The children, teachers and chaperones bunked in cabins and had team activity groups.

The three days were very organized in order to make the most of their time there. The different teams rotated through nine activities a day and had group events at night.

"The days are action-packed and started at 7:45 in the morning and continued until 10 at night," said sixth-grade teacher Sandy Jacobs.

The weather was chilly, but the students were prepared and had packed what they needed. The cabins were heated which probably explains why so many ladybugs chose to join them.

The evening group events were special. One night they have a night hike in the moonlight and a wolf hunt. Someone has a megaphone and howls through it until the other wolves can find him. This can be a little intimidating, but Jacobs said they have more awareness of self after they've done it.

On the other night the group put on a talent contest for those who wanted to enter. Others enjoyed the show. Certainly, all of the children enjoyed the talent portion put on by the teachers when they sang the "Snowflake" song.

Many of the benefits of the trip cannot be tested on achievement tests, but the program does accomplish some of the goals of the Illinois State Board of Education.

"They always love it and they don't want to leave, but they're very tired when they get home," said Jacobs. All returned safely.

ARMED ROBBER

Police said.

In checking the gun's registration, the police learned it belonged to her ex-husband, from whom she had stolen it earlier in the month, Police said. When called, the ex-husband was unaware it was missing and found the case to be empty.

Woodard was taken to the Antioch Police Department and she refused to make a statement. After consulting Assistant States Attorney George Pappas, she was charged with armed robbery as well as unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

Woodard was taken to the Lake County jail in lieu of $100,000 bond. Armed robbery is a Class X felony which calls for a sentence of six to 30 years in prison.

GROWING

He reminded the group of how small businesses responded to the stock market crash in 1929 that led to an unemployment rate of 25 percent.

"Small business struggled. They gave credit. They bartered," he said. "People gathered in the downtown to exchange information and socialize. The small businessmen played a vital role in the rebuilding of our nation."

Since that time, small businesses have had other difficulties with which to deal, such as regional malls, commercial strips, power centers and small, medium and big box stores.

"But we're still here because of the small businessmen. A downtown merchant is part for a family of their fellow merchants and a member of a family called downtown. It's still a gathering place, a place to have fun, a place to do commerce and a place to break bread with friends. No box store or strip center can claim this," LeMere said. "We can continue to survive."

He suggested ways that the businesses could help one another, such as cross-promotion, joining the Chamber and explaining the free parking to customers, and also keeping it available for customers rather than employees.

"Greet people with a smile. Have a lay-away program. Have a return policy. Be flexible," he said. "Have consistent shopping hours to meet the needs of modern day times."

"Remember, we cannot invite company to our homes if the doors are locked. They will not return and they will tell others," he said.

The merchants agreed to create four committees that would focus on unified shopping hours, marketing, cross promoting and restaurants.

Antioch has recently joined the Lake County Tourist Bureau and is in the midst of hiring an advertising firm to give Antioch an identity.

"Community Service has submitted a great program to the administration for exteriors and some interior improvements on commercial buildings," he said. Improvements on Lake Street are scheduled to begin in the spring.

"Antioch has the most wonderfully diverse, well-merchandised, retail and service business that I have ever experienced," LeMere said. "Our eateries are fantastic and getting better."

HOMETOWNSPORTS

Rebels win inaugural Lake Villa Fall League Championship

The Lake County Rebels capped an 8-3 fall campaign with three wins on Oct. 1 during the Lake Villa Fall Baseball Tournament. The Rebels started the day with an 11-1 victory over the Kenosha Lighting. Pitchers Tyler Olker, Travis Stefanowski and Marc Ortman combined to limit the Lighting to one hit. Wills Massie (2 for 2), Nick Battalini (2 for 3), and Travis Stefanowski (3 for 3) paced the offensive attack. One of Stefanowski's hits was a long home run to left center.

The second game saw the Rebels prevail 5-4 over the Lake Villa Storm. Olker, Stefanowski, and Ortman turned in another fine pitching performance by limiting the high scoring Storm to five hits and just one walk. Wills Massie (1 for 2), Nick Battalini (2 for 2), and Jeremy Wiker (3 for 3) combined for five of the Rebels hits and all five of the runs. Wiker contributed on defense all day with three outstanding games behind the plate. Derek Jordan also had a key RBI hit in the decisive sixth inning as the Rebels forged ahead.

In the championship game the Rebels triumphed over the Northern Illinois Rebels 3-1. The key to this victory was nearly flawless pitching by DJ Snelten, Kevin Smiley, Brendan Frank, and Marc Ortman. The one run tallied by the Northern Illinois club was unearned. A key hit for the Rebels was a long two-bagger by Colin Gillespie. He would come around to score an important insurance run on a Massie single. Battalini, Wiker, and Ortman also contributed with hits.

The Rebels would like to thank this year's sponsors: Antioch Pizza, RJB Automotive (Lindenhurst), Great Northern Bank, Billy's (Spring Grove), Quality Builders Remodeling, C. Haling & Sons Marina, S.S. Schwarz Construction, and Wellborn Cabinet Inc.

The Lake County Rebels show off their hardware after capturing the inaugural Lake Villa Fall League Championship Baseball Tournament.

Republican Club donates $1,500 to Lake Villa Township

Salvation Army also donation recipient

By Kathy Gresey
Staff Reporter

The Lake Villa Republican Club recently donated $1,500 to Lake Villa Township Charities.

The club was able to raise the money from the township's annual 5K run and walk. The funds will be used to promote new programs in the township.

"We are looking at new programs like senior snow removal...and other things," said Lake Villa Township Supervisor Dan Venturi. "It will be used for things we can't use tax payer dollars for. It allows us to expand our services."

Republican club members also voted to contribute $500 to the Salvation Army.

'We are looking at new programs like senior snow removal and other things.' 'It will be used for things we can't use tax payer dollars for. It allows us to expand our services.'

Dan Venturi
Lake Villa Township Supervisor

Through an agreement between the township and the Salvation Army the money will be used to help neighbors who are in need.

"We have specific guidelines for those funds," said Venturi, stating that the money may be used for those unable to pay their heating or other miscellaneous bills. "We use the money specifically for those things."

Lake Villa Township does offer General Assistance to qualifying residents. Financial eligibility is determined by nonexempt assets and currently available nonexempt income.

State law also requires that any individual requesting assistance must reside in the respective township and follow the mandated guidelines for finding and accepting suitable employment in a reasonable amount of time.

For more information on Lake Villa Township's General Assistance program, call 847-356-2116.

YWCA director spreads group's message

By Matt Pera

Staff Reporter

The YWCA Lake County Executive Director Elizabeth Forbrich has had the chance during the past week to spread the mission statement of her organization—"Eliminating Racism, Empowering Women."

Forbrich was featured on Comcast's Newsmakers, a segment that began airing on CNN HeadlineNews Oct. 24 and will run until Friday, Oct. 28.

News anchor Ruth Kaufman hosted the interview, which has been airing 55 minutes after the hour between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. all week.

"We talked about what differentiates our organization from others, and I said it was our mission," Forbrich said. "And that's so relevant today because, still, one in four women are involved in domestic violence...women represent 51 percent of the population, yet represent less than 15 percent of Congress."

Forbrich said the idea for her appearance on HeadlineNews came up when Comcast Corporate Affairs Manager Debra Marton was visiting the YWCA.

"We received a wonderful grant of $20,000 from Comcast for our ESL (English as a Second Language) program," Forbrich said. "(Comcast) is involved in communications so this made a lot of sense."

During the segment, Forbrich explained the many programs offered at the YWCA, which is based at 2133 Belvidere Road in Waukegan. Some of the services she discussed were ESL classes, GED preparation, technology courses, youth development and job skills training.

She added that all of the classes were offered in both English and Spanish and geared toward, "providing the necessary tools and support for low-income women on their journey to self-sufficiency."

Last year, Forbrich said YWCA programs and services assisted more than 22,000 Lake County residents. She said another major reason for doing the Newsmakers segment was to promote the YWCA Lake County's upcoming luncheon and symposium.

That event will take place Nov. 4 at the Crowne Plaza in Mundelein with a focus on women's economic empowerment.

Shinae Chun, who is the director of the U.S. Department of Labor's Women's Bureau, will be the keynote speaker. The cost of the luncheon is $40, with the symposium priced at $10.

Forbrich said overall her appearance on HeadlineNews would provide recognition for her organization throughout Chicagoland, as it ran from northern Illinois as far west as Elgin and as far south as Kankakee.

"It's going to be very good for not just the YWCA of Lake County but all the YWCAs in the region, which is wonderful," she said.

Youth enjoy confidence by being more dramatic

The students, ages five to 12, gathered around a marked area at Shepherd of the Lakes Lutheran Church on a Friday afternoon.

Who knows, perhaps those walking around as soldiers to show off even patterns of rhythm or in every direction to show off uneven patters may have theater in their future. Or even if it is as an executive, the skills gained at Drama Kids International should help. Paula J. Coombe, BA, Ed., of Round Lake Park, instructs the weekly classes at several sites.

"The classes started five weeks ago. The students range the gamut, from those who have had acting skills and have an agent to those who have no experience in acting at all," Coombe said.

Coombe has taught acting from her native England and spent a year in Caracas, Venezuela. Students come to her for lessons in speech from Vernon Hills to Fox Lake and Zion.

"It can help from Broadway to the board room," Coombe said. "The students can take it to age 18 and never repeat a lesson."

Helen O'Grady started the program 20 years ago in Australia. Local people have franchises of the program. "The students learn speech and movement skills that can help them everyday in their self-esteem and self confidence," Coombe said.

The fee is $448 for one year.

"It is important because when high schools and grade schools cut programs, the first thing that gets cut is drama," Coombe said.

Parents at the Friday one-hour session, dropping off their youngsters, liked the concept.

"It is hard to find such lessons for younger kids. My daughter already has a costume box at home," Mindy Stanczak said.

"She loves it. She has confidence already, but she really likes acting," said Stella Pignatari.

Drama Kids International was getting the word out about its program at a Gurnee Mills Expo.

LAKE COUNTY GHOST HUNTING

BY REGAN FOSTER

Step inside the world of the supernatural with one of the county's foremost paranormal researchers.

It was a cool and blustery Thursday afternoon, and Dan McFarland was walking slowly across a Grayslake cemetery.

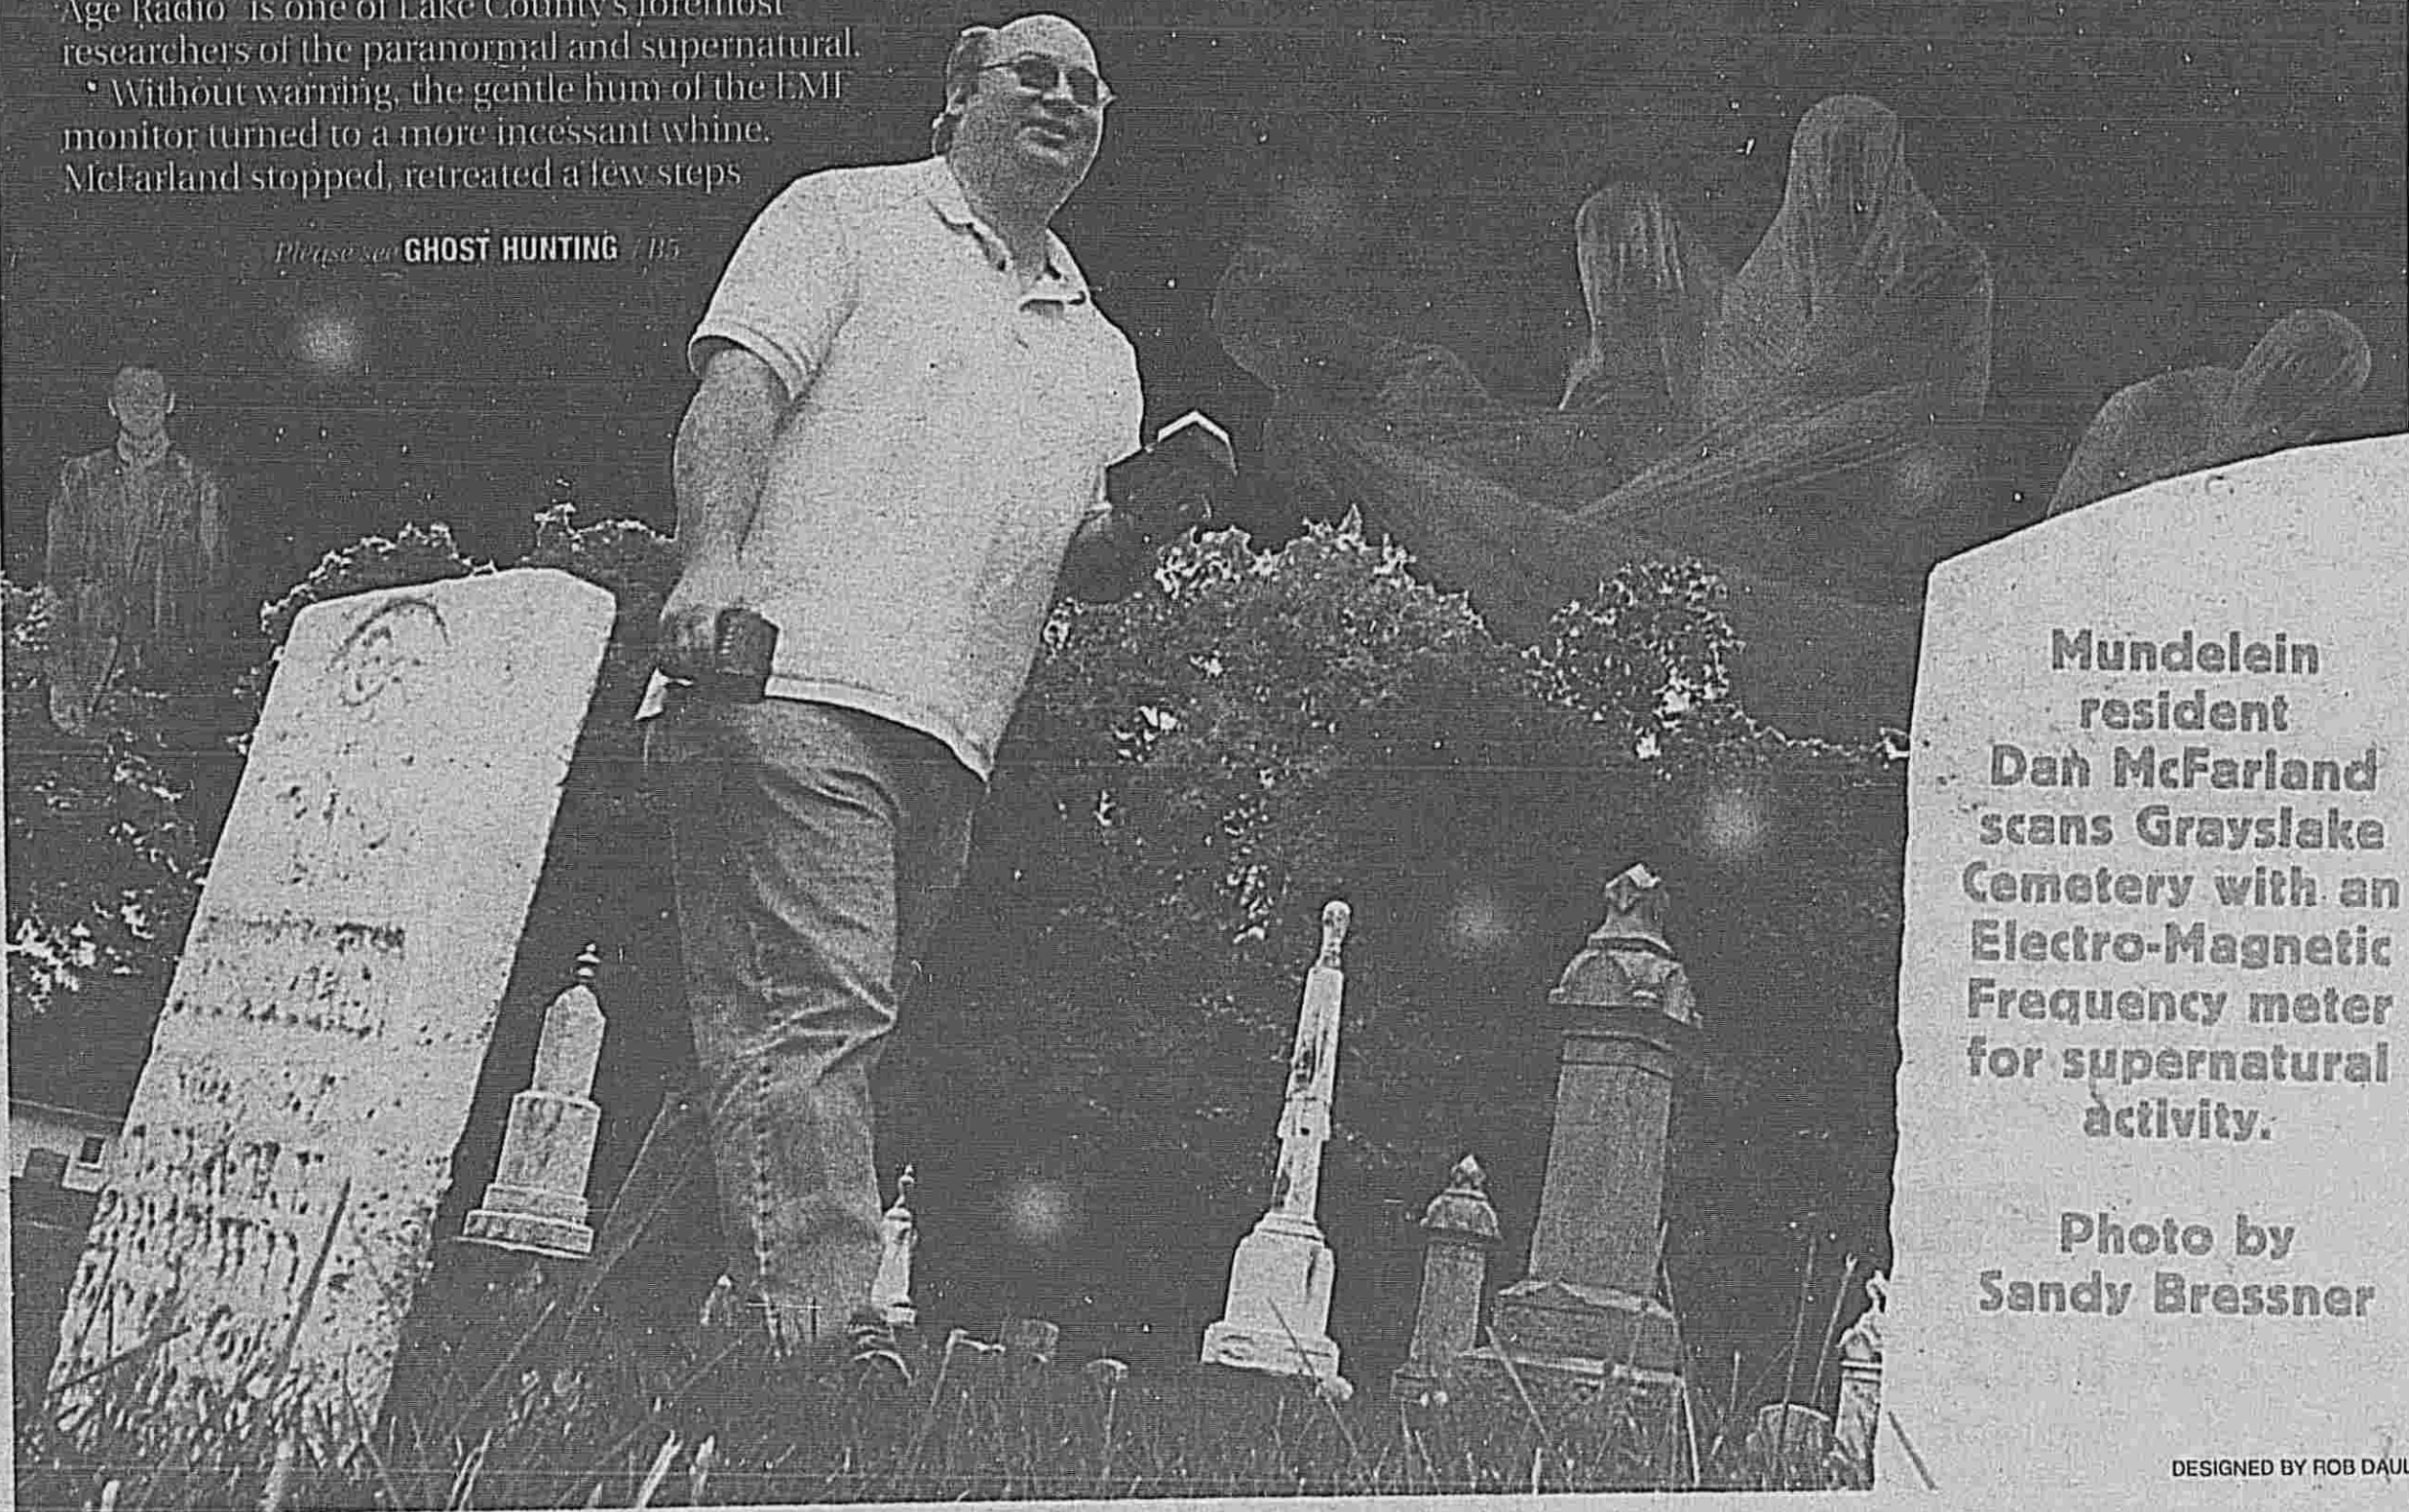

He carried a small compact gauge known as an EMF — or Electro-Magnetic Frequency — meter in one hand and an inferred thermal sensor — a laser guided and digital thermometer that looked like a bar-code scanning gun from the grocery store — in the other. The small EMF hummed politely in McFarland's hand as he swept it, forth and back, forth and back, across the grassy path separating ancient headstone from ancient tombstone.

It was a chilly, overcast afternoon in October. What McFarland considered "perfect ghost hunting weather."

The 36-year-old Mundelein man should know. McFarland, the host of the former 1220 A.M. WKRS radio show "New Age Radio" is one of Lake County's foremost researchers of the paranormal and supernatural.

Without warning, the gentle hum of the EMF monitor turned to a more incessant whine. McFarland stopped, retreated a few steps

Musical 'Bark!' unleashes dog treat for humans

By Tom Witom

"Bark!" – a clever, pun-filled musical comedy making its Midwest premiere at the Chicago Center for the Performing Arts – is designed to appeal not only to dog owners but to animal lovers of all stripes.

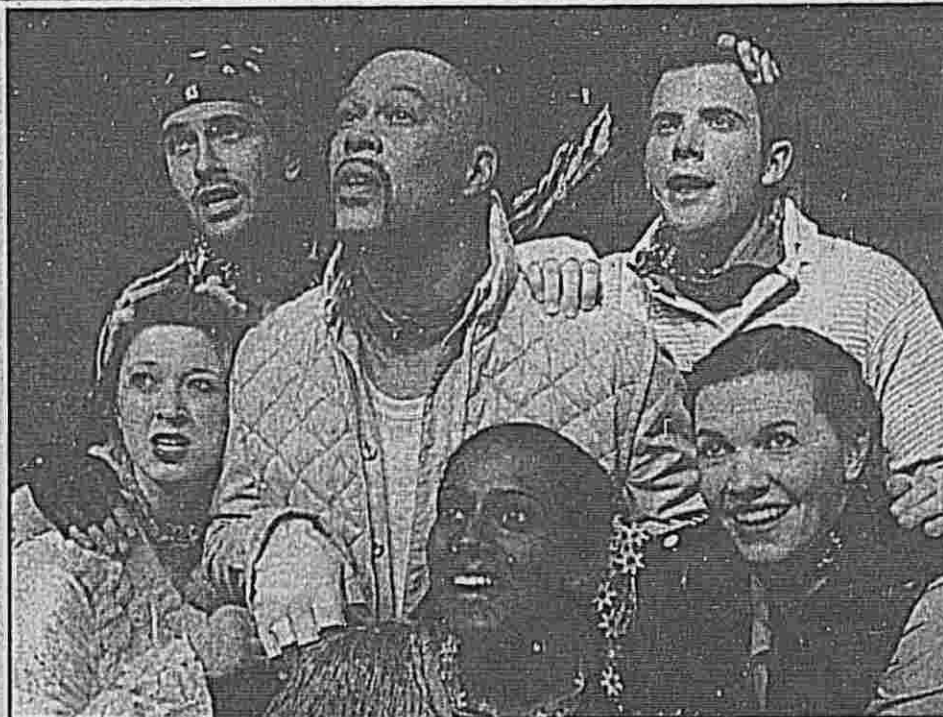

A light-hearted confection crafted with a touch of pathos, the show purports to serve up a look at life from a canine perspective.

Featuring the music of David Troy Francis and lyrics by Gavin Geoffrey Dillard, "Bark!" unfolds in a dog pound where its five occupants get acquainted with the newest arrival, a frisky, curious and wide-eyed innocent pup named Rocks (Devin DeSantis).

The other hounds include a sexy Standard French Poodle, Chanel (Cory Goodrich), a vision in pink puffballs; Cagney (Mary Mulligan), a worldly retired German Shepherd police dog; Boo (Sharon Muthu), a nurturing Spaniel/Dachshund mix; Ben (Stanley White), an aging, abandoned Labrador Retriever who saw service as a seeing-eye dog; and the siren-chasing mutt Sam (Tony Barton), a Pit Bull/Chihuahua mixed breed.

Predictably, as the titles suggest – "Whizzin' on Stuff," "I'm in Love with Lassie," "Ruff World" and "Chasing My Tail" – the songs, 19 in all, revolve around food, love and loyalty as well as hunger to serve a new master.

Sam brings down the house with an emotional showstopper, "A Grassy Field."

An undercurrent of tension pervades. It's an open secret that the older dogs know: their time at the animal shelter is finite. Unless someone comes along and adopts them within six weeks, they face an untimely end.

In the meantime, each dog tells a brief story of its life and dreams for the future.

"Bark!" is directed and choreographed by Kay Cole. Additional lyrics are the work of Robert Schrock, Jonathan Heath, Danny Lukic and Mark Winkler.

Costumes by Sharell Martin manage to effectively suggest the characters without tails or floppy ears, just as the bits of wire fencing in Dan Wheeler's set are enough to create a sense of place. Jesse Klug's lighting, too, adds to the dramatic effect.

While this is a doggone good treat, it will take a big bite out of your pocketbook. Tickets are $45 apiece.

Long Grove to host Countryside Holiday

Follow a country road through a covered bridge into the holiday season when the business district of Long Grove hosts a Countryside Holiday Preview Open House and Art Walk on Nov. 18. Shops will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. that day, marking the start of late Friday hours through Dec. 24.

Luminaries will line the cobblestone walkways and a traditional wreath will adorn the covered bridge. Over 80 shops, boutiques, and galleries, many housed in restored Victorian homes and barns, will be decorated and trimmed in lights. All will be brimming with unique gifts, collectibles, home accessories, art, clothing, antiques, specialty foodstuffs, and more to appeal to all tastes and budgets. Restaurants and specialty food shops will be open late for dinner, a light bite, or dessert.

This year an Art Walk will take place until 9 p.m. that evening, reflecting the growing number of galleries that have opened in the business district during the last year. Painting, photography, and sculpture, and other creative medium will be showcased at Amberland Artisans, Amers Gallery, Artist @ Heart, Art Werks, Cassandra's Gallery, Dakota Expressions, Gallery Munoz, Studio of Long Grove and Woodland Grove Gallery. Santa and Mrs. Claus will stroll the town beginning at 6 p.m. and, at 8 p.m., make their way to the traditional tree lighting ceremony that will feature music and a sing-a-long of holiday favorites.

Joffrey Ballet starts its 50th anniversary season with a dreamy program. It includes "The Dream," Frederick Ashton's one-hour ballet based on Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream"; Jiri Kylian's 1975 work that's a poetic mixture of ballet, modern dance and dream-like acrobatics; and a re-staging of Joffrey artistic director Gerald Arpino's 1980 "Celebration," described as "folk dancing gone mad." New cookbook demystifies traditional Arab cuisine Arab cooking, despite roots that span the centuries, largely remains a mystery to Americans.

Enter culinary professional May S. Bsisu, who was born in Jordan into a Muslim family, and lived in Kuwait, Beirut, London and, since 1990, Cincinnati. Her informative cookbook, "The Arab Table" (William Morrow, 2005), provides a history of the Arab world, its cuisine and cultural customs.

Some ingredients in her 188 recipes may be more difficult to come by, such as freka (greenish brown under-ripe wheat grains) and arak, a clear spirit made from distilled grapes and flavored with anise seeds. But it's still fun to peruse the many intriguing dishes, from salads to main courses to desserts.

Bsisu's Chicken and Rice with Creamy Yogurt Sauce is said to be one of the oldest dishes in the Arab cooking canon. A visit to a well-stocked grocery may be necessary for some of the ingredients like Arab flatbread and basmati rice. However, it's worth the trip; this dish, with its lemony-garlic undertones, is absolutely delish.

Tom Witom

COOKING BY THE BOOK

Chicken and Rice with Creamy Yogurt Sauce (Fatet Dajaj)

- 32 oz. plain full-fat yogurt
- 10 cloves garlic, mashed
- Salt, to taste (optional)
- 3/4 cup fresh lemon juice
- 3 Tbl. vegetable oil
- 1 loaf Arab flatbread, cut into 1-in. squares
- 1 6- to 8-pound chicken, rinsed
- 1/4 cup Spiced Chicken Stock or low-sodium canned broth
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. black pepper
- 1 Tbl. butter, cut into small pieces
- Basmati rice, kept warm
- 1/2 cup fried pine nuts
- Chopped fresh parsley, for garnish
- Paprika or red pepper flakes, for garnish

Spoon the yogurt into a bowl and set two paper towels directly on top of it to absorb the excess liquid. (This step isn't necessary if you are using Greek Total brand yogurt.) Replace the paper towels when they become saturated. After about 10 minutes, remove and discard the paper towels.

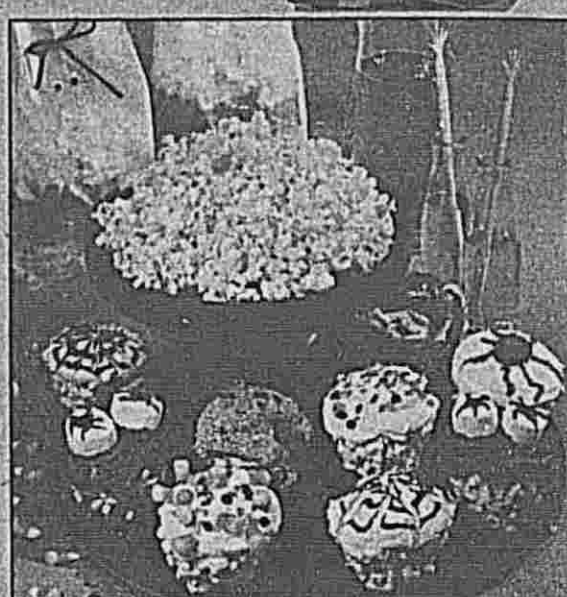

Add half of the garlic to the yogurt and mix thoroughly. Taste the mixture - it should have only a subtle garlic flavor - and add a little salt if desired. Whisk the remaining garlic and the lemon juice together in a small bowl. Set both mixtures aside.

Heat the vegetable oil in a large skillet over high heat. Add the bread pieces, in batches, and fry, stirring constantly, until crisp, about 1 minute. Using a slotted spoon, transfer the croutons to paper towels to drain.

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees F.

Cut the chicken into small pieces (at least 8 pieces), and skin and debone them. Place the meat in a baking pan and add the stock. Season with the salt and pepper, and scatter the butter over the chicken. Bake, covered, for 20 minutes.

Spread the croutons in a deep 8-by-13-in. baking dish, completely covering the bottom. Drizzle the lemon-garlic mixture over the croutons and toss so that every piece is soaked. Spread the Basmati rice on top, smoothing in with the back of a spoon. Cover the rice with the yogurt mixture, spreading it evenly over the grains, and top with the chicken pieces. Scatter the pine nuts over all, and garnish with the parsley and paprika. Serve immediately.

TIPS FOR CARVING A PUMPKIN

Carving pumpkins is a blast with these easy steps. Materials needed: a smooth, basketball-sized pumpkin (12- to 15-inch), a pencil, scissors, tape, Pumpkin Masters Carving Kit (including patterns, carving tools, Scraper Scoop and Super Poker) and a battery-operated light or candle.

- Draw then cut out a six-sided lid from your pumpkin.
- Use the Scraper Scoop to clean out the insides.
- Select a Pumpkin Masters pattern and tape it to the outside of the pumpkin.
- Transfer the pattern using the Super Poker to poke along the pattern lines.
- Remove the pattern and begin to carve dot-to-dot, working from the outer edge of the design. When the carving is complete, place the light or candle in the bottom of the pumpkin and don't forget to take a picture of your masterpiece.

Check out lots of ideas and tools for all ages and skill levels at www.pumpkinmasters.com. Remember: Parents should supervise when children are using tools. It's fun to carve and be creative, but safety comes first. Always store tools away from children's reach.

GHOST HUNTING

and moved forward again, inch-by-inch. He halted, again, in the same spot and slowly swept his hand in an arch across the area.

The monitor continued its whine, registering a "3" on a scale of 1 to 100. Given that the monitor has been reasonably quiet for the past 20 minutes, McFarland was pleased with this response.

"Do you hear that? That was just something passing through," McFarland said with a grin. "It (three) is nice, but four or five would have told me it was out of the normal for what we were seeing here."

And with that, the ghost, or spirit, or whatever the energy mass was that was picked up by the EMF monitor disappeared from the area.

McFarland first became interested in the paranormal at age 14. He said there was no single life-changing experience that led him to want to study the supernatural, but rather "probably a series of little things."

Now, he's a professional tarot card reader, a psychic and a consultant for groups and individuals interested in learning more about the paranormal. In short, McFarland is a professional ghost hunter.

That said, the man doesn't consider himself an expert.

"Nobody can be an expert because there's too many unknowns," he said, adding that there was "always more to learn."

Entering the world of the paranormal

Paranormal research has come a long way in recent years, McFarland said. Far from the days when spiritual studies resulted in inquisitions and burnings under the label of witchcraft, interest in the paranormal and supernatural has grown and educational opportunities are expanding.

Still, one of the primary misconceptions people had about the supernatural, he said, was that a specter of any sort was intrinsically evil.

"Part of it is that everything is a demon and that's not true," McFarland said. "But people are starting to get around that."

McFarland said he had been called by a wide range of groups to investigate potential paranormal activity in homes, in businesses, even in churches. While several are legitimate hauntings, McFarland has also had plenty of calls for investigations that didn't necessarily prove fruitful.

Oftentimes, what people believe to be supernatural sounds are just normal ambient noise, such as a house foundation settling, he said. Psychokinetic Energy — or PK Energy — also played a big role in artificial paranormal phenomenon, he said.

"Everybody has energy in their bodies," McFarland said. "You can actually create that energy field to be much stronger than it naturally is."

For example, if it seems like every time you sit down to write a note the paper blows away, it may just be your personal energy acting on the area, he said. But, it's also good to be aware of what's going on around you.

"If you're standing in a room and feel the hairs on the back of your neck stand up, it's 'All right, where is he,'" McFarland said with a grin.

Ghost hunting 101

Among the many hats that McFarland wears in the realm of Illinois and Wisconsin paranormal research are those of teacher and guide. He teaches free seminars and paid courses called "Ghost 101" to groups throughout the tri-state area, the next of which will be conducted on Nov. 1 at the Mt. Prospect Public Library.

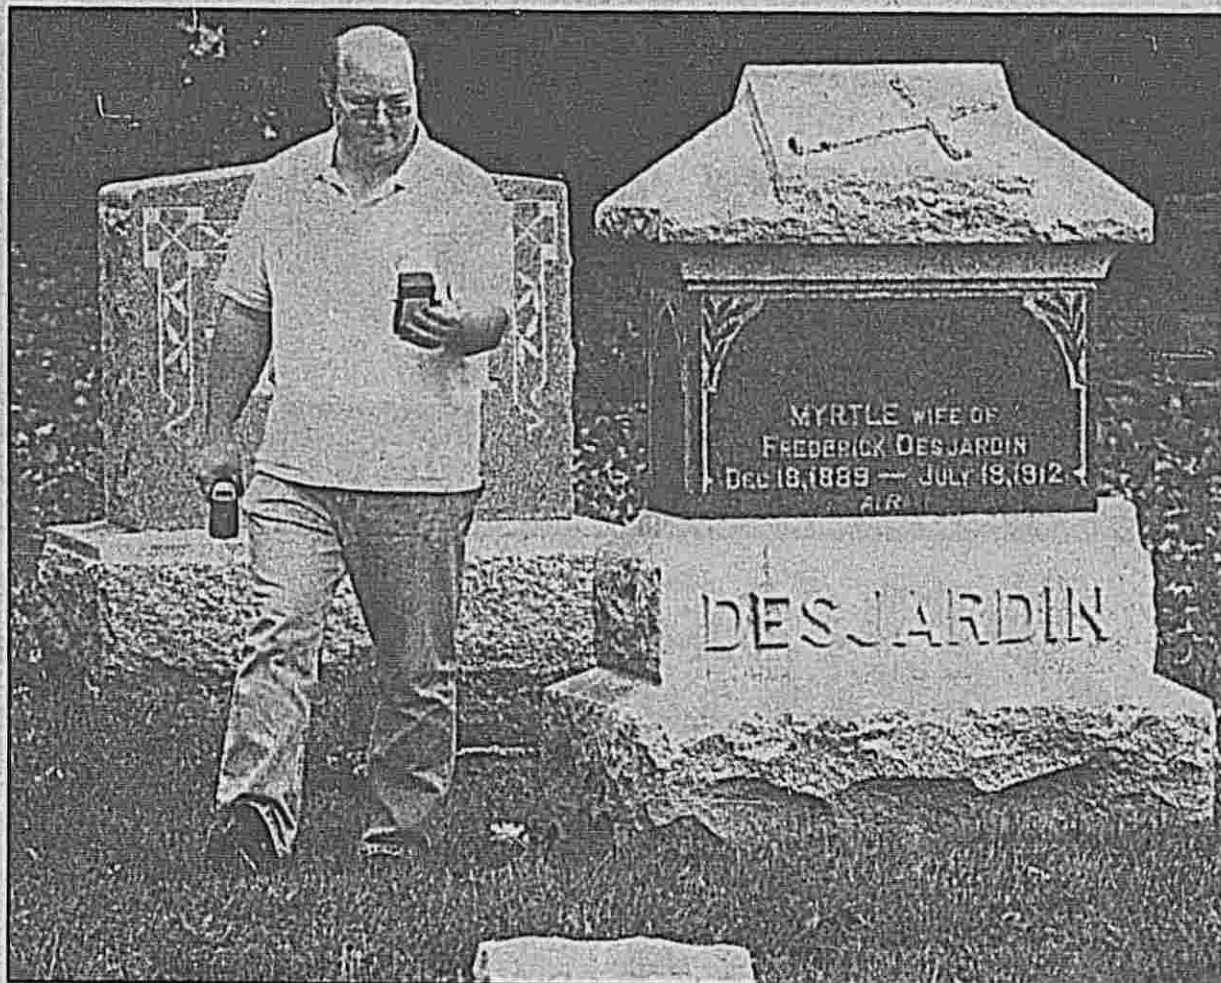

The courses, as well as McFarland's work, are designed to teach novice supernatural sleuths proper practices and procedures. After all, there are certain safety measures that must be taken when it comes to ghost hunting; and foremost among them, don't interact with a spirit.

"You don't know what it is, you don't know why it's there," McFarland said. "Is it there to do harm? Is it attached to something?"

Wait, ghosts and spirits can become attached?

Well, yes, according to McFarland. Everything from houses to antiques, even people, can capture a spirit's fancy, both in the living and the afterlife, he said.

Take that lovely antique china set you purchased at the antique mall last week. Or, that sold oak conference table in your office building. If these items had a particular value to a spirit, the spirit could very well attach itself to them.

"If this table was here and you moved it into a different room, you could take the (ghost) with it," McFarland said, laying his hand on the thick table at which he sat. "There's something that means something and you could take home your very own ghost."

The second rule to keep in mind: Supernatural sleuths should make sure they are properly equipped for the hunt. McFarland uses a wide range of detection devices, including cameras, microphones and audio and digital recorders.

At the top of his tool bag, however, is a good ol' fashioned flashlight and a lot of surplus batteries.

"Flashlights are a must," McFarland said. "As a rule, if you don't have a flashlight and I'm going along, you're not going."

Finally, communication is key. While true ghost hunters and paranormal researchers don't like to go out in large groups — they can interfere with the energy flows of haunted happenings, McFarland explained — they also know not to go out alone.

"It's a huge safety thing," he said. "You always make sure people know where you're at and you're not alone."

On the trail

After 22 years in the world of the paranormal, McFarland has seen plenty of specters, both evil and benign. A recent investigation he led, located at a former seminary and preparatory high school in St. Nazianz, Wis., landed McFarland a spot on national television last weekend.

The seminary was founded by the Rev. Ambrose Oswald 151 years ago this month, according to the St. Nazianz village Web site. In its 100-years of operation, the school and church went through a variety of changes, ranging from a short-lived orphanage for girls to a college.

A massive fire destroyed the church steeple in 1955, but the structure was rebuilt. Nonetheless, the facility was abandoned in 1980 and has remained, privately owned but unoccupied for the last 25 years, the Web site suggested. Abandoned, that is, by the living.

"There's a lot going on there," McFarland said.

But McFarland said he didn't often get rattled by the paranormal, anymore.

"You kind of expect to see certain things now," he said. "Now, nothing really surprises me much."

Five for frightening

Spooky haunts across the county

By Regan Foster

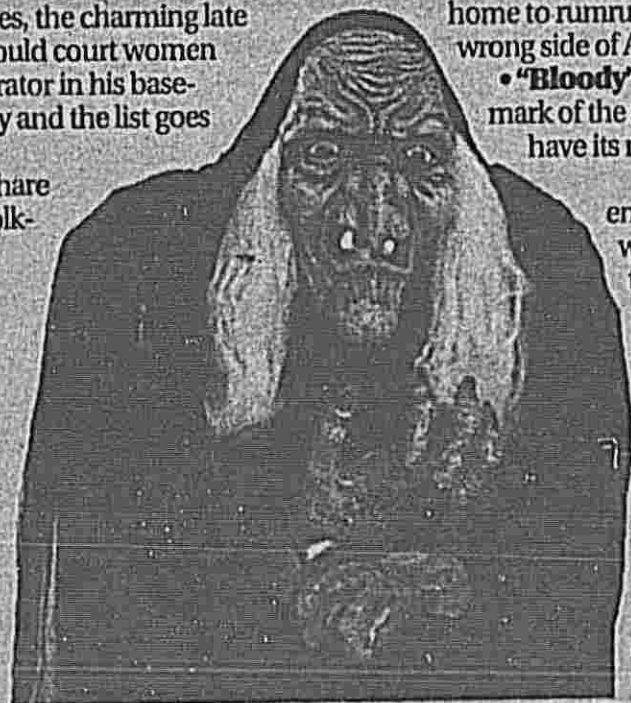

Staff Reporter

No ghost story is complete without a good scare, and Lakeland Newspapers is happy to comply. It's been said that Chicago has the highest population of ghosts per capita, and small wonder, with a history like that belonging to our metropolitan area.

Just think of the household names from Chicagoland associated with ghosts, terror and the macabre: Mrs. O'Leary's cow and her lantern; H.H. Holmes, the charming late 19th century pharmacist who would court women before baking them in an incinerator in his basement; Capone; John Wayne Gacy and the list goes on and on.

Lake County hosts its own share of spooky stories and haunted folklore. The Shadowlands, a Web-based index that totes itself as "Run by ghost researchers, for ghost researchers," has a database consisting of hundreds of Illinois hauntings. That list, along with hints on how and when to conduct paranormal research, can be found at www.theshadowlands.net.

Ghost story expert and author Ursula Bielski has also comprised excellent collections of Chicagoland lore, published by Chicago's Lake Claremont Press. Those books, "Chicago Haunts" and "More Chicago Haunts" have more in-depth details of the area's most infamous ghost zones.

While the following five Lake County haunts are just a sampling of the places listed by those with knowledge in the realm, they are those that have been most consistently reported by a range of researchers, authors and experts.

• Cuba Road from Barrington to Lake Zurich: A quiet stretch of road between two affluent villages has become renowned for its haunting specters.

The White Cemetery in Cuba Township dates back to the 1820s, and in its 180-odd year history, has come to infamy among motorists of all ages. Legends say that white, mysterious orbs — some of which have taken a vaguely human form — have been spotted floating alongside the cemetery fence.

Further legend about the road speaks to a mysterious black vehicle and a disappearing house. Rumors and Web sites indicate that if you drive down the road during a full moon and turn off your headlights, you can spot the old manor. This, as all ghost lore, however, must be entered into with caution, as everything from driving without headlights to trespassing is actionable by law.

• Ghosts on the Fox River: Ah, the meandering beauty of west Lake County's Fox River. While legends regarding this watershed aren't area-specific, ghost hunters have expressed belief that various bars, homes and roadhouses along the waterway are home to rumrunners, prostitutes and gamblers who got on the wrong side of Al Capone during his heyday.

• "Bloody" Mary Worth: A chant that has become a hallmark of the slumber party, "I believe in Mary Worth," may have its roots just west of Gurnee.

Far from a comic strip character, local legend has it that "Bloody" Mary Worth was a witch who lived on a farmstead in Lake County during the Civil War. Worth, according to folklorists, lived on Old Wagon Road and was renowned throughout the region for catching runaway slaves and using them for diabolic rituals.

Legend says Worth was burned at the stake and buried in St. Patrick's Cemetery, although questions have been raised as to whether 19th century dogma would have allowed her a Christian burial.

Recent folklore says Mary was actually buried on her own property and haunted the area. Still, curious onlookers have been known to flock to the cemetery in attempts to summon Mary.

• "The Gate": Independence Grove is home to a dark legend. Folklore has it that before the site was a preserve at all, it was home to a girl's school. While legends vary into who, exactly, performed the atrocity, stories all agree on one thing: Sometime years and years ago, a man went crazy on the grounds and executed many of the girls.

After decapitating some of the children, legend has it, the man left the school building, walked to the huge black iron gate, and staked the children's heads on the gate posts. The school house has been razed, but the gate still exists.

Legend says that people have heard children laughing or crying at the site, or have seen physical evidence — in the form of footprints or faces — of the girls.

• Volo (exclusive to Lakeland Media): Far from the macabre story about Libertyville's "Gate," Volo's Antique Mall 1 may play host to a friendly ghost.

"George" is one of the strong, silent types. The alleged ghost is rarely seen, but mall spokeswoman Gail Pivar said George made his presence known in different ways.

"Many people have reported, number one, smelling tobacco, feeling cold and several customers have reported in the past seeing things move," Pivar said. "A bottle of perfume could slowly move from one table to another."

Mall staff and customers have also reported hearing footsteps and voices when no one was in the area, feeling an unearthly presence, and even getting a report of a gentleman in antique clothing helping customers with heavy purchases.

"One lady bought a victrola, a big, heavy victrola," Pivar said. "It ended up downstairs and one of the ladies who was working said 'Oh, how did you get this down?' and she said 'Oh the gentleman helped me with it.'"

As it turned out, there were no men working in the mall that day, Pivar said, causing employees to believe "George" helped the purchaser with her phonograph.

George's history is unknown, but mall owners believe he is could be traversing between two cemeteries on either side of the mall, Pivar said. The mall is located in an 1850s vintage barn near the intersection of Routes 12 and 120, and smack dab in between St. Peter's Church and a Civil War cemetery, Pivar said.

While no one can say for sure why George stops in the mall, or even from where he's coming, Pivar said one thing was for sure, he had done no harm.

"He seems to be pretty friendly," she said. "He's never done anything scary or wicked."

This barn houses Volo Antique Mall 1 and is believed to be haunted.

Prepared to be scared

The Chicago area is known for its haunted cemeteries (including Graceland, Archer Woods, and Rosehill), and its haunted buildings (such as Hull House, with its rumors of a devil baby living in the attic; and the "Murder Castle" of H. H. Holmes; America's first convicted serial killer). There may be a new site to add to the list: Volo Antique Mall 1 in Volo, near the junction of routes 12 and 120.

Antique Mall 1 in Volo is only open until 5 p.m. so no one knows if things "go bump in the night." There is evidence, however, that the mall (which is housed in an old, wooden barn from the 1850s) does have a resident spirit or ghost that the mall staff has named George. He seems to be a friendly spirit and has never shown any signs of malevolence.

George isn't often seen, but lets his presence be known through other senses. He is most often felt in the hallway on the second floor as a chill in the air. People report actually feeling cold. Often, there is a strong smell of pipe tobacco in the air. Staff and customers also report hearing footsteps or voices upstairs when no one is there.

Several customers have reported poltergeist activity. A couple saw a perfume bottle float across the room and be set on a dresser, and two children saw the same thing happen with a pipe.

Another dealer who also feels the presence of George and smells the pipe tobacco says, "I can't explain it, but I feel totally comforted by his presence as though he's an angel wrapping me in his wings. I think he protects all of us and the mall. He's a kind of watchman."

The Antique Mall Complex houses three antique malls, a Mercantile Variety Mall, and the Straw Market Craft Mall. Paula Smith, a dealer at the Mercantile Variety Mall believes that it may also have a resident spirit. She says that the presence of a ghost is often evidenced by the smell of natural gas in a place where it wouldn't normally be found. She has smelled this several times in the front of the mall. She has also heard dishes being moved around when there is no one there.

There is no known history of anyone dying in the barn but certainly, given its age, there may have been deaths that occurred there. Also, the barn is right between two cemeteries one of which dates to the Civil War plus another at St. Peter's Church across the street. Perhaps George wanders between the two?

Marilyn Miller, the manager of Antique Mall 1, says George is usually pretty active in the week following Halloween so maybe a surprise is in store? Maybe George will reveal himself among the antique furniture pieces and fill whoever is there with a feeling of peace.

Volo Country Village houses five malls with over 350 dealers. There is plenty of free parking. UPS shipping is available on-site.

The Legend of Zorro: Part cowboy, part pirate, and perhaps even a tad of Batman, Zorro has been protecting the poor and the helpless from the underhanded Mexican government for a long time. "The Legend of Zorro" takes place ten years after the events in "Mask of Zorro." Perhaps a little longer than it needs to be, the movie has its good moments. A scene where Zorro jumps his horse onto a moving train is particularly electrifying. Also stars Catherine Zeta-Jones. (PG)

Prime: A comedy set in NYC starring Uma Thurman and Meryl Streep. Thurman portrays a recently divorced career woman from Manhattan who falls in love with Bryan Greenberg, a talented painter from Brooklyn. Uma's therapist is Meryl Streep, whose sage advice takes on a different meaning when she learns that Uma's lover is her son. (PG-13)

Saw II: In this bloody horror thriller, The Jigsaw Killer locks some ill-fated victims in a booby-trapped shelter. To escape to safety they must find a way out before they inhale too much of a lethal nerve gas. While there is an escape route, Jigsaw has paths in the shelter that lead to death. (R)

A Conversation with Shane Black, director of 'Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang'

By George Singleton

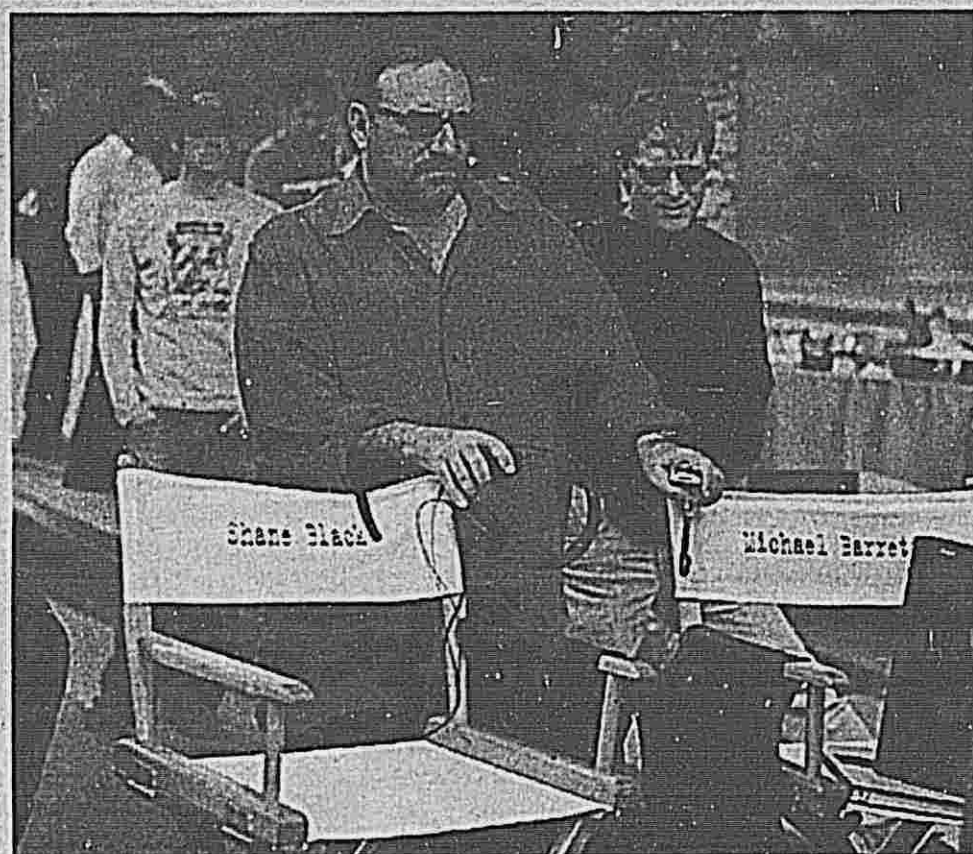

Shane Black, the writer/director of "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang," created the Mel Gibson "Lethal Weapon" character, wrote all four "Lethal Weapon" movies. This is Black's directorial debut and Robert Downey Jr. delivers his usual quirky performance, which, of course, is anything but usual. The characters here share the same sort of good-natured goofiness and banter as "Lethal Weapon." This colorful comedy is not as violent as "Pulp Fiction" but the tone of both movies has a lot in common. For those looking for a twisted adult comic thriller, your dreams have come true.

George Singleton: Your career in film has been focused until now on writing, acting and producing. What motivated you to become a director?

Shane Black: I got restless; writing was laborious. It might come up on the screen in a form that I don't like or not agree with. I've been eating all my vegetables but skipping the dessert. Directing, as compared to solely writing, is a more social experience; it's not solitary. Directing brings out more parts of who you are.

GS: What's the difference between wanting to be a director and making it happen for a big budget film that gets distribution?

SB: Mel Gibson suggested to Joel Silver (his partner in the "Lethal Weapon" movies) that Downey be in the film. They vouched for him being clean [Downey has a history of substance abuse]. His behavior during the film was unimpeachable. The studio wanted a recognizable box office star, like $20 million actor Harrison Ford. Eventually Joel and I looked at each other and agreed that we could make the film for $15 million. Downey and Val Kilmer [sometimes known as a party animal] aroused a little anxiety as the leads in the same movie. With it being so low budget, the studio stayed out of the way. The only person I had to please was Joel. We shot the film in 35 days. Downey and Kilmer totally committed to each and every scene. They are very intelligent actors and they elevated the material.

GS: Because the action is so over the top, it clearly was not an easy movie to film. I'm thinking of the car chase toward the end. How do you make it look convincing without going over budget?

SB: If you have enough angles (on camera) and the actors give the needed performance, we can get either what we want right now or later in the editing room. There was not a lot of improvisation. For the six months leading up to filming, I worked very hard to be prepared. I knew what changes could be done without affecting my plan.

GS: You are considered a pioneer when it comes to writing modern-day action films. What are your thoughts on the direction of this genre?

SB: I would like to see the action more character driven with the focus on suspense versus action.

This intelligent, witty film fills the bill for Shane's desired direction in action films.

Into every life a little rain...

Dave Spritz (Nicolas Cage), an appropriate name for this Chicago TV weatherman, lives a life just this side of overcast. His fans, however, expect him to be as happy while standing in line at the DMV as he is on the evening news. He's separated from his wife Noreen (Hope Davis) and his two teenage children. His son Mike (Nicholas Hoult) is being hit on by a male high school counselor and is experimenting with drugs. Daughter Shelly (Gemma de la Pena) is somewhat overweight and has some major self-image issues. Dave's father, Robert Spritz (Michael Caine), is a highly successful writer who, unlike his son, was able to balance his career objectives and still be a caring and attentive father and husband.

Dave's issues are many. Although he gets lots of sexual action because of his local celebrity status, he has no illusions about his personal magnetism or sexual prowess. Dave wants his wife back but she has moved on with Russ (Michael Rispoli), a man who may soon move into Dave's comfortable suburban home with Noreen and the kids.

Mike and Shelly are very important to Dave, and he spends time with Shelly trying to encourage her participation in activities she's only superficially interested in, such as ice skating and archery. Dave kind of likes the archery and he begins practicing on his own, and takes to carrying his bow and quiver of arrows slung across his arm, as he navigates the Chicago streets. He thinks he's in touch with son Mike and sets a goal for a Nikon camera for the boy, yet Dave's in a state of malaise and feels a bit sorry for himself, so he misses key signals that something is wrong with his son. The elder Robert Spritz, however, does not. Dave's chance to see both the grandeur of the forest and the simplicity of the trees of life doesn't become clear until his father is diagnosed with an illness that could be fatal.

One messed up guy, Dave makes more than a quarter-million dollars a year and never seems to have more than $21 in his pocket. At times, when he wants to offer comfort or lend support to his father with the small purchase of a cup of coffee or a newspaper, he comes up short.

What does perk Dave up is the chance at an Al Roker-type job on national TV in NYC, with an income package of more than one million dollars a year.

The acting in the film is superb. Cage is quirky yet he maintains a life much like you and I. We may meet many of our career and personal goals but there are some important things that are not going our way. Having an optimistic All-American attitude, Dave believes that tomorrow will be better than today. Michael Caine is the perfect father who only speaks when he has something to say worth listening too. The two children show that while being a parent is not easy, it is a path worth taking. It's not a job; it's something that most people want to do in life.

The writing by Steve Conrad is spot-on. Gore Verbinski is the director ("Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl" and two sequels currently filming). There is one crucial moment in the film when Cage assumes a warrior-like stance, bow and arrow at the ready, amid a cluster of trees, it's only Lincoln Park in Chicago but he is primal man, ready to defend. He removes his gloves and you're sure what his next move will be. At least you think that you do.

Chicago is showcased brilliantly in the film. There are lovely shots of an icy Lake Michigan and overlooking the Gold Coast on Lake Shore Drive. Real place names are used, such as Evanston and Bolingbrook. And there's recognition for those familiar with the city. Dave Spritz' apartment is on the West End of the Chicago River by the Merchandise Mart, with a view east to the lake. It's quite impressive. There were no scenes as in the completely loony movie "Surviving Christmas," which had mountains in the suburbs of Chicago. If you are not familiar with Chicago, this film is a beautifully accurate depiction.

"The Weather Man" is similar to many things in life. The wind can change quickly and we cannot control it. We do however, find a way to navigate toward our goals, even though we may have to take a course that we did not expect.

Hope gets her wheels

Tuesday, Oct. 18, Tricia, Laurie, Bonnie and I went to the Chicago City Pound on behalf of Animal Education and Rescue, a non-profit organization dedicated to helping pets and people. We were there to pick up some homeless dogs and foster them until we could find permanent homes for them. After deciding which dogs we would rescue, we headed for the exit, dogs in tow, when the director of the shelter approached me and asked me if we could take a special needs puppy. She went on to explain that the puppy was paralyzed in her back legs. I asked her to show me the pup. Turning, I followed her through a maze of doors and hallways to the medical ward.

An adorable, 6-pound brown terrier mix puppy was brought in the room in the arms of a vet tech and placed on the floor. Like a jumping bean the little pup began running around the room at full blast. She was dragging her back.

My first thought was, "oh this poor thing." But I soon realized there was no reason to feel sorry for her, she didn't. Her zest for life was obvious. The director told me that no rescue group had come forward and she's, "rotting away in medical." I scooped her up, torn because I knew I couldn't personally take her home because of all my dogs. Who will take her? I thought to myself.

I said, "let's bring her up front for my friends to see."

I carried her to where my friends stood and they responded to seeing her with ooh's and ah's at the cute, little puppy I held in my arms. I said, "now wait a minute, you have to see this." I put her down and she began hopping and scooting, chasing one of the other dogs - which looked at her like, "what the heck?" They gasped seeing her drag back legs, but then noticing her fighting spirit they giggled at the spunky pup who was still terrorizing a big lab, who was trying desperately to get away from her.

"What do I do?" I asked them. "I don't want to leave her." There was a pause, as we all looked at each other, grief stricken. Tricia, one of our volunteer foster mom's said, "I'll take her." We all looked at her, our eyes wide with surprise. I said, "Are you sure?" She said, "Oh, yeah, I'm sure."

On the ride back home we named the pup Hope. We felt there was indeed hope for this dog so the name suited her perfectly. We took her to the vet right away. The vet said that it is her hips that don't work, she was born with the defect, and it is likely she will never walk.

24 hours later thanks to Lisa, one of our handy volunteers, a cart has been built with wheels in the back that will work as Hope's back.

Mental Hygiene 101: stigma and you

We've all gone through it. Schools separate boys from girls at that certain age for a showing of the dreaded "hygiene" film. I remember snickering at an old black and white production with cheerleaders in poodle skirts claiming good posture was the remedy for "that time of the month." The emphasis on appearances was laughable considering the dramatic and confusing internal changes teens go through.

And in much the same way we've all got an outdated hygiene film running through our heads about mental illness. We hide serious illness, because the mentally ill are dangerous deviants with significant character flaws due to their aberrant upbringing.

Luckily a growing number of mentally ill "consumers" and their families are organizing to rewrite this script. One of these groups is the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill (NAMI).

NAMI provides "support, education, and advocacy on a national, state, and local level for persons touched by mental illness".

On Oct. 2, NAMI of McHenry County held their annual "Changing Minds Walkathon" fundraiser at Moraine Hills State Park to coincide with Mental Illness Awareness Week (Oct. 3-9) and Bipolar Awareness Day (Oct. 7).

Speaker Dr. Chandra Vedac of the Elgin Mental Health Center began by describing mental illness as "a private hurricane that must be lived with everyday." NIMA

Leslie Glazier-Werner

LES ON LIFE

McHenry President Merna Drewno followed this up with hard statistics, such as: "Mental illness is the second leading cause of disability in the U.S." and "Illinois ranks ninth in per capita income, but 30th in per capita spending on mental health services."

Most telling was my conversation with "consumer" and NAMI support group leader Katherine Dolton. Kathy is an articulate and caring mentor to others, with the good humor to joke about a disastrous interview with another newspaper, "They described me as a seriously mentally ill person who hangs out in bars. That's not me!" Unfortunately, mental illness is often sensationalized to boost television ratings or sell papers.

Anyway, I joined the walk, not only to support NAMI, but also to gather my thoughts. Yes, illness like schizophrenia or bipolar disorder is an inner storm with potentially deadly consequences for the sufferer. Through no fault of their own—or their families—the mentally ill suffer from a neurological disease just as real and impartial as Parkinson's. But with education and the appropriate treatment these individuals can lead productive lives. In fact it may surprise you that the following "stigma busters" had or have bipolar disorder: Mark Twain, Jonathan Winters, Ted Turner and, oh by the way—me.

Tim Koughl, left, of Chicago becomes alarmed at the sight of a cut on the finger of Professor Von Helsing, played by Mark Kettner of Paddock Lake, Wis., in a scene from "Dracula," that opened Oct. 26, 1990, at the Jack Benny Center for the Performing Arts in Waukegan.

The Exchange Club of Grayslake won the National Exchange Club's Big E Award for excellence.

The announcement was made at the national organizations 57th annual convention in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The Big E award was presented annually to Exchange Clubs meeting stringent requirements in efficiency, expansion and education. Of the nearly 1,300 Exchange Clubs that comprised the national service club, only 284 qualified for the award.

One of four missing youths in Lake County, all of whom were being sought by the Lake County I-SEARCH Unit, had been located in Seattle, Sheriff Robert H. Bobcox reported.

The 15-year-old from Zion had been located and the I-SEARCH Unit was working with Seattle police to confirm her whereabouts. After an appeal to the public, the unit received information that led to her discovery.

The other three missing youths, ages five, 18 and 15, and from Mundelein, Antioch and Waukegan respectively, were still being sought.

State officials and owners of Arlington International were looking at two sites to establish another Off Track Betting (OTB) facility in northern Illinois to blunt the outflow of wagering to dog tracks at Delevan and Kenosha, Wis.

State Rep. Robert Churchill (R-Lake Villa) reportedly supported efforts to locate an OTB center in Fox Lake.

The Waukegan OTB, operated by Arlington management, had suffered from dog track competition.

Survey says forest preserves popular, highly rated

Lake County residents use their Forest Preserves frequently and give them excellent ratings for customer service, cleanliness and safety, according to results of a countywide survey reviewed by Lake County Forest Preserve Commissioners.

By nearly 2 to 1, voters surveyed also said that they would support continued funding for preserving more land, restoring more wildlife habitat, creating new trails and completing other public access improvements through a proposal that would not increase property taxes.

"People in Lake County enjoy their Forest Preserves," said Bonnie Thomson Carter, Lake County Forest Preserves president. "Our forest preserves earn high marks for cleanliness, safety and customer service."

In the past two years, 73 percent of Lake County households surveyed reported visiting their Forest Preserves.

The most visited Forest Preserves were:

Independence Grove near Libertyville (37 percent); Van Patten Woods near Wadsworth (13 percent); Lakewood near Wauconda (13 percent); Old School near Libertyville (12 percent); Ryerson Woods near Deerfield (9 percent); Des Plaines River Trail throughout Lake County (7 percent); Half Day near Vernon Hills (7 percent); Grant Woods near Fox Lake (6 percent); Wright Woods near Lincolnshire (6 percent); Rollins Savanna near Grayslake (5 percent); Greenbelt near North Chicago and Waukegan, including Cultural Center (4 percent); McDonald Woods near Lindenhurst (4 percent) and Cuba Marsh near Barrington and Lake Zurich (3 percent).

Hiking (60 percent), bicycling (37 percent), picnicking (31 percent), walking or exercising pets (19 percent), fishing (9 percent), jogging (9 percent), boating or canoeing (8 percent), programs, events and exhibits (8 percent), swimming (6 percent), and watching nature (5 percent) are the most popular activities.

Visitors gave their Forest Preserves excellent ratings for helpfulness of staff (8.5 out of 10), cleanliness (8.5), and safety (8.1).

Nearly two-thirds of voters (64 percent) supported continued funding for land acquisition, habitat restoration, trails and other preserve improvements through a proposal that would not increase property taxes.

A slight majority of voters also said that they would support another proposal, a bond referendum for the Lake County Forest Preserves, if it were placed on the March 2006 ballot.

Support was reported at 53 percent, 56 percent and 52 percent for bond issues that could cost an additional $19, $29 and $39 respectively per year per $200,000 of a home's market value.

Among future overall priorities for their Forest Preserves, Lake County residents ranked operating and maintaining existing preserves, trails and facilities highest (rating of 8 on 10-point scale). Acquiring and protecting natural areas (7.4 of 10) and restoring and managing habitats for native wildlife and plants (7.3 of 10) were next highest, followed by providing educational facilities, exhibits and programs about nature, history and culture (6.8 of 10). Opening new preserves, trails and facilities rated lower (6 of 10).

The survey was conducted by Richard Day Research, Inc., of Evanston, for the Lake County Forest Preserves, and included telephone interviews with 716 residents Lake County. The overall margin of error is plus or minus 4.5 percent.

HOSPITAL

VA. The new joint hospital represents a total reversal of plans announced in 1999 to close the North Chicago VA. Kirk pledged to save the hospital during his first campaign for Congress.

In October of 2003, Kirk won approval for the first stage of the integration, moving the Navy's mental health unit into the North Chicago VA.

This blocked prior VA plans to close the veteran's hospital. In November 2004, Kirk won approval for the second phase—a $12 million expansion of surgery suites and emergency rooms.

When this phase of integration is complete next summer, four new operating rooms and 14 new exam rooms will open for patient care. The third phase is the most ambitious—a $110 million Naval hospital to be fully integrated with the VA.

"The new joint hospital will offer state of the art care for veterans and sailors," said Kirk during the signing ceremony. "This includes a $1.3 million Women's Health Clinic and pediatric care rooms inside our VA hospital."

Kirk was instrumental in saving the North Chicago VA from two attempts to close the hospital in 1999 and 2000. With the Naval hospital and VA less than a mile apart, Kirk brought the Secretaries of Defense and Veterans Affairs together on a plan to combine services of the two hospitals, creating a synergy that would improve health care for both veterans and sailors.

"Over 50,000 veterans live in Lake County. The census bureau projects this number will grow to 55,000 by 2010," said Kirk. "The integration of our Navy and VA hospitals will offer better health care for our growing veterans' community, sailors and their families."

In the cards

An 'intuitive reader' discusses the mysteries of Tarot

Dave Buhrmester, an intuitive reader, reads Tarot cards at A Sacred Earth in downtown Antioch.

By Brenda Balin

Special to Lakeland Newspapers

Photos by Sandy Bressner

What is yet to come is a mystery. People have always tried to find ways to pierce the veil of the future.

Some study history, looking for trends. Some seek the help of psychologists, to better understand how the mind influences choices, and lays the foundation for what is yet to come.

Others turn to the "arcane" arts of divination, trying to see the future as something already written on the scroll of eternity.

There are many tools of divination: those who claim to be gifted read signs in runes and bones; in the secrets revealed by the counting of yarrow stalks and the I Ching; by the lines on the palm of a hand or the bumps on a head; or the patterns left in the bottom of a cup by tea leaves.

One of the most popular methods of divination involves the use of cards. Tarot is the best known method, and may be the most misunderstood.

Although other methods of divination have existed for centuries, Tarot cards, as they now exist, were conceived in the 14th century, according to Arthur Edward Waite, an authority on Tarot.

According to legend, the special relationship between Romany Gypsies and Tarot goes back to the crucifixion of Jesus. It is told that there was supposed to be a nail driven through Christ's heart, but a Gypsy stole it. As a reward, Gypsies were given the Tarot.

For the uninitiated, the Tarot deck consists of 78 cards. A typical deck of 52 playing cards echoes the four major suits of Tarot: diamonds correspond to wands, hearts correspond to cups, clubs correspond to swords and spades correspond to pentacles.

Each Tarot suit also includes, in addition to the traditional "court cards," a knight. The deck also has 22 cards referred to as Major Arcana, or Trumps.

These cards include symbols such as the Magician, Death, the Fool, the Lovers and others, bringing the total number of cards to 78.

Not only does each card have a meaning, but how it is positioned in a "spread" further defines it as either a statement of a present condition or a predictor of what might be yet to come.

Dave Buhrmester, a 42-year-old "intuitive reader," uses Tarot cards as a means of helping people see the path they are on. At the same time, he believes in free will, and does not consider the use of Tarot to be fortune telling.

"Most people follow some kind of pattern

Tarot card reader Dave Buhrmester uses a Morgan-Greer deck of cards for his readings at A Sacred Earth in downtown Antioch.

in their lives," he said, explaining that he believes Tarot helps reveal that pattern. "If you continue this way, this is what you will encounter."

Buhrmester is not "psychic" in the sense promoted by television performers. Sitting opposite me, in a restaurant, he still needed to ask if I wanted sugar in my coffee.

He does not "see all and know all" as the old movie fortune tellers would claim, but he does believe he has a gift of a deeper intuition than many people possess.

"It's a matter of perception," he said. "To some degree it is a natural ability, but how it develops is up to the individual."

Buhrmester became aware that he had more insight than most people when he was very young.

"When I was a child, I would 'see' things," he said. "It frightened me, so I blocked it."

Buhrmester rediscovered his talent at the age of 14, after a high school friend gave him a reading.

"I became very spiritual when I was about 17," he said. "Everyone thought I was going to become a priest. A friend said it was great to be spiritual, but I needed to live in this world."

Buhrmester began reading at King Richard's Faire, now known as the Bristol Renaissance Faire, in Wisconsin.

Then, as now, he followed three rules for himself: "I never discuss someone's reading with anyone else; I never solicit readings and I always tell the truth."

Buhrmester said most of his clients come to him by word-of-mouth. A few pick up his business card at Sacred Earth, on Main Street in Antioch, where he regularly reads on alternate weekends.

His daily life appears prosaic. Married, the father of three teenagers, he performs maintenance for a large pharmaceutical company. He said his intuitive nature has helped him be better at predictive maintenance as well as preventive maintenance.

As an example, he said he once persuaded the company to invest in a transformer that was not needed at the time.

Shortly thereafter, the existing transformer was struck by lightning, and he had the replacement ready to go.

"This isn't witchcraft," he said. "Lots of people, like reporters and police for example, work on instinct. I just focus on it more than the average person."

Like most readers, Buhrmester relies on feedback to help him find answers that resonate with his subjects.

"A good reader is an armchair psychologist," he said.

The cards themselves exist in his world as something more than a prop but less than a sacred object.

Still, he treats them with respect. Referring to the "care and feeding" of Tarot, he said each deck should be "programmed" to the user. The cards are stored in a container of a natural material. In his case, Buhrmester stores his cards in a red silk bag inside a leather pouch.

Some people "cleanse" the deck by smudging it with the smoke from white sage.

There are many designs of Tarot decks. The most well-known deck is the Rider deck. It is based on descriptions by Arthur Edward Waite, with designs by Pamela Colman Smith.

Buhrmester said he did not feel an affinity for the stiff medieval designs. He prefers to use the Morgan-Greer deck, illustrated with softer, fairy-tale-like designs by Bill Greer, under the direction of Lloyd Morgan.

One of the most controversial decks is the Thoth deck, designed by Aleister Crowley and painted by Lady Frieda Harris. The more abstract designs are attractive to some people, and off-putting to others. Crowley, himself, was a controversial figure in the world of the occult, and that association also repels some people.

The deck has become more popular with the current upswing of interest in Cabbala (Jewish mysticism), the basis for Crowley's interpretations.

Regardless of design, all decks have in common the symbols of the four suits and arcana, as well as other elements, such as numbers and symbols referencing astrology and Cabbala.

Buhrmester does not dwell on those more esoteric meanings, but uses the cards as a means of tapping into his intuition about querants, as those who "question" the Tarot are called.

Buhrmester does not advertise, but accepts inquiries about readings. He can be reached by e-mail at Azrael61@ameritech.net, or by telephone at 847-561-0388.

Those interested in learning the art of Tarot reading can attend classes held on a rotating cycle of Tuesday, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., at Sacred Earth, 952 Main St. (Route 83), Antioch. The store, which offers occult and new age supplies and gifts is open every day except Monday. To find the class schedule, call 847-838-5694.

The classes are taught by another reader, Janice Olsen. Based in Mundelein, Olsen also gives readings at Sacred Earth. She can be reached at 847-309-0376 or by e-mail at angelicLightworker@msn.com. Her Web site is www.ShiningLite.com.

Buhrmester cautioned would-be querants that readers should not be seen as "oracles."

"Readings are a tool to give you knowledge," he said. Even so, he acknowledges that it might not be desirable to know everything.

"I have respect for science and objective questioning," he said. "But, when everything is explained, all the mystery of life is gone."

In that mystery, some find wonder and beauty. In Tarot, some find answers, and some find still more questions and still more mystery.

'Doctor' Martin offers school Rx

Businessman Jack Martin has expanded his success in commerce to indulge himself in researching and speaking out on public issues. He also enjoys supporting like-minded candidates for public office. And speak out he does. Martin knows no boundaries. Wasted tax dollars and stupidity in public office are among his favorite targets. Martin is a passionate conservative.

Martin's penchant for writing controversial letters and taking sides in election politics has earned him a larger than life reputation. "Meddler" and "troublemaker" are some of the more mild labels hung on Martin who lives and operates a business in Libertyville. We ourselves have referred to Martin as a "gadfly" for his propensity to reach beyond his home territory, taking unpopular stands and quarreling with popular institutions, especially public education.

Say what you will about Martin. He's not shy and he delights in shaking the establishment. You may criticize his conclusions, but be careful about challenging his facts. Jack Martin does his homework. We offer these observations about the man and his mission in calling attention to views he expressed last week in the Lakeland Media letters to the editor column.

Martin spoke out about a fourth unsuccessful referendum to raise taxes in Winthrop Harbor elementary school district in the extreme northeast corner of Lake County. We admit to being impressed with his recommendations because they address familiar problems currently weighing down many Lake County school districts. The Winthrop Harbor dilemma has eerie similarities to other districts. Gurnee elementary, Round Lake unit, Gavin (Ingleside) elementary, Big Hollow School (Fox Lake-Ingleside) come quickly to mind.

As a way back, Martin recommended replacing the Winthrop Harbor superintendent and closing a building harboring dangerous asbestos to save thousands of dollars in administrative and operating costs. Be honest with true referendum costs to individual taxpayers, Martin advocated. Raise student fees. Most important, perhaps, was Martin's recommendation that citizens and taxpayers pay more attention to what goes on at board of education meetings. Attend in person. Get informed.

Jack Martin may not have all the answers, but his prescription for what ails Winthrop Harbor School district is right on target. At the same time, Martin offered insight into comparable shortcomings in other school districts.

Chase for money puts Bean in front

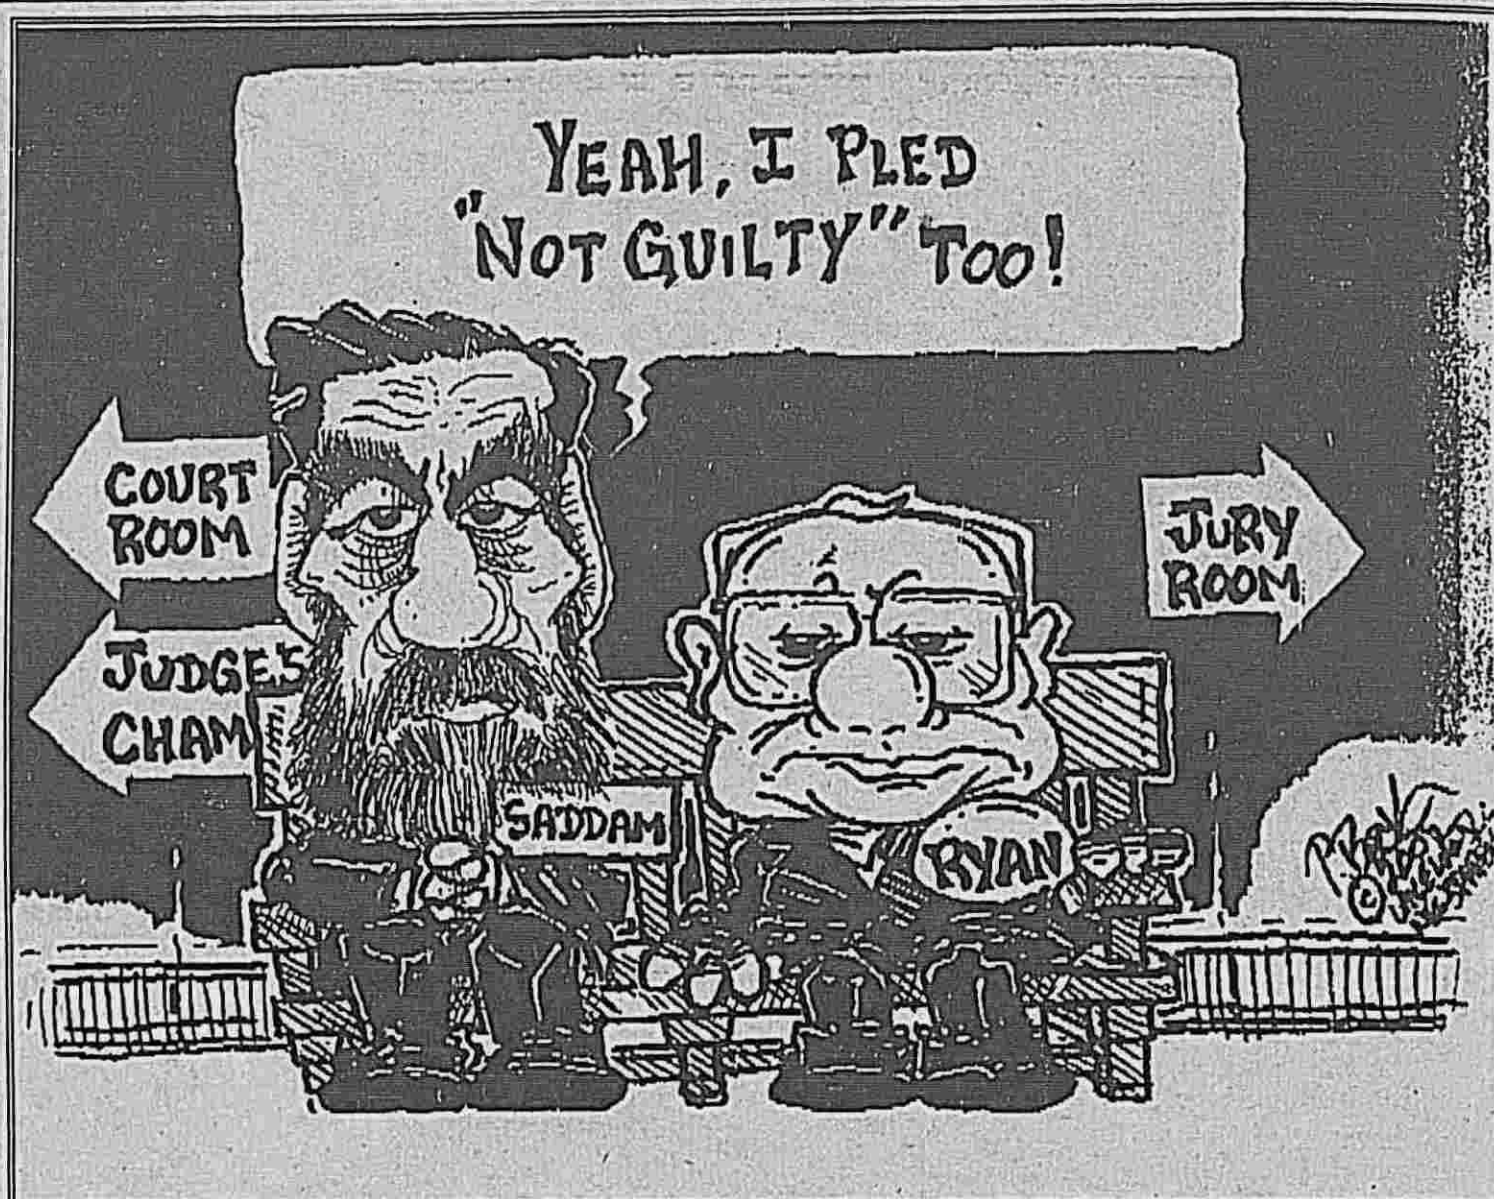

The 2006 election for 8th Dist. Congress may be more about money than political philosophy or public policy affecting residents of the three-county district covering west Lake County, eastern McHenry and northwest Cook County.

By that measurement, incumbent first term Democrat Melissa Bean will be a formidable foe in basically conservative territory where voters turned their back on aging Republican Phil Crane in 2004. By moving to the center and working hard to minimize her liberal instincts, Bean has indicated that she's going to let her dollars do the talking in a campaign that already is well underway.

According to latest reports filed with the Federal Election Commission, Bean raised $1.4 million in the last quarter. Closest Republican was David McSweeney with $700,000 reported. Significant sums have been raised by Kathy Salvi and Terese Bartels, but they are nowhere near Bean. There was no report on Bob Churchill, a late starter for the GOP nomination, who is expected to make a serious challenge for the nomination.

Without opposition in her own party, Bean can go about Congressional business on cruise control, building her general election war chest, while the Republican challengers burn themselves out physically and financially in what is shaping up as a free-swinging primary.

Comparing bankrolls and the amount and source of campaign contributions explains why incumbents in Congress always have a big advantage.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Officials should stand for taxpayers, not bureaucrats

Referendums, referendums, and more referendums; when will they end after the U. S. economy has fallen to a third world level? Now we have elected representatives of the taxpayers going to court and seeking special referendum election dates to drag the economy down further. To impoverish more hard working citizens, to cause another increase in welfare rolls. When are these elected officials finally going to stand for the taxpayer instead of the privileged class of special interest they seek more funds for? Believe it or not.

After the Black Tuesday in October 1929 the world economy was sliding, President Hoover in an attempt to improve the situation began a series of federal efforts to control the economy, the Depression resulted. He wasn't reelected. His successor, President Roosevelt immediately expanded government exponentially and deepened the Depression more.

After the Feds placed about one out of every three people out of work it was perceived a need for welfare, and public pensions. In 1935 Social Security was enacted, by 1937 the flat tax had caused a recession inside of a Depression, so the Federal government decided to borrow against the money in the trust fund and create government supported jobs. Not end the unfair burden and admit the great man could be wrong. Before then and every time since when ever taxes go up jobs go away, more people who were barely making it fall into the welfare cradle and it's dizzying effects. When the first SSAN check was issued in 1940 there was no money unaccounted for to make the check good needed to repay loans.

Just so you know in practically every government body the cost of maintaining the bureaucracy and patronage workers takes up almost every penny paid in, with little or no money left to benefit the taxpayers. Audit your local taxing bodies. You will see I'm right.

Demand fair share

The Shields Township Supervisor's letter to the editor missed the mark. The financial problem facing North Chicago school district is not a state issue - it is a federal issue. It is not a school issue; it is a property tax issue.

This is not the time to focus on a state solution or point fingers at state representatives. This is the time to mobilize every taxpayer to have the federal government pay their fair share to educate military housed students.

It will take a grass roots effort to change the federal legislation. Some real heat has to be put on Kirk, Obama and Durbin or the local taxpayer loses. Elected officials have a real opportunity to lead a big victory for the community if we can get the right information out and have every taxpayer make their voice heard.

The root cause of the issue is that school age children living on federal property do not pay local property taxes. This is the case with 1,500 students attending North Chicago schools. While the federal government does provide something called Federal Impact Aid, it only provides about 60 percent reimbursement to the school district. As a result, North Chicago is burdened with over 4 million dollars per year in additional school district costs.

Proposed changes in the military housing distribution between Great Lakes, Fort Sheridan and Glenview may cause a further reduction in reimbursement to less than 10 percent. This would immediately put North Chicago School District in a financial fund leading to the financial burden spreading to all property taxpayers in the area. Unfortunately, many focus on the state and local consequence of the problem and not the root cause which is at the federal level.

A change in Federal Impact Aid legislation is the only real solution to the issue. It is our federal representatives and senators that need to fix this problem. Every taxpayer in our area should contact Representative Kirk, and Senators Obama and Durbin and demand a fair reimbursement to local school districts through Federal Impact Aid.

Our local, township and state representatives need a unified, not a divisive, position on this issue to make the local taxpayers voice heard at the federal level. It will take leadership at all levels of government to force the change in federal legislation to pay their fair share.

Party switcher

I am a proud Vietnam Vet. I voted Nixon, Carter, Reagan, Bush, Gore, Dole, Kerry. Why so many Republican votes? I felt they could match a kinder, gentler nation with fiscal responsibility. I was wrong. Bush does not care about the little people, even the middle people. He has reversed "Tax and Spend". He has cut taxes for the wealthy, spent without responsibility, and now threatens the weakest citizens in our society. I am a proud person, proud enough to publicly support Democratic Party values now. I simply did not see Bush and his kind of men coming at me.

GOP debased values

Congressional Republicans would have us believe the federal programs they are trying to cut in this week's budget process don't affect most of us. But they are aiming to cut billions of dollars from student loans, Medicaid and other programs directed toward the least fortunate in this country. I have been fortunate that I haven't needed such support and have paid in substantial amounts of taxes over the years. I believe that it is the responsibility of each of us to shoulder our share and help those less fortunate. I don't believe that cutting taxes for the richest while cutting benefits for the least fortunate represents the core that has made this country great.

Congress should reject the Republican budget because it goes against the basic values that this great country was founded on.

COMMENTARY

Regan Foster

Forgive me my trespasses ...

Hallowed father, stand aside and prepare to say some serious "Hail Mary's," the reporter from Mundelein and Libertyville is about to commit blasphemy.

I know reporters aren't supposed to have opinions, but I couldn't help but wax poetic, as I listened to reports of how the 11 priests who have been defrocked over alleged sexual abuse of minors were guaranteed anonymity.

Uh, OK, I'm a First-Amendment purist. I believe that people should be able to say what they want to say and do what they want to do as long as it doesn't hurt anyone else. Don't step on my constitutional rights, and I won't step on yours. An' it harm none, do what ye will.

Raping children doesn't count.

I recognize that clerics who lose their collars because they can't keep their hands off youngsters are not considered sexual offenders because they are tried in church tribunals. I recognize that because they are not subject to state and local laws that say they don't have to be listed publicly as sexual offenders because they haven't been found guilty in a court of law and therefore aren't "convicted."

My question is why in Hades not?

If these allegations were even raised against a public school teacher, we'd logically string him (or her, I say "him" because we all know that women can't be priests) from the rafters using nothing but razor wire. Why do we give special consideration to men who could easily be teachers in private schools?

Why is a priest immune to the punishments that get doled out to the men from whom he hears confession, often of much less heinous crimes?

And why are we still following the prosecutorial traditions of a doctrine that up until the late 17th century condoned the burning of heretics and Protestants alike?

The separation of Church and state aside, why has our Supreme Court been pondering whether words like "one nation, under God" should be removed from the Pledge of Allegiance when they should be determining how to prosecute all sexual offenders, including those men of the cloth?

If these men are truly deserving of anonymity, then let a jury of their peers decide. What are we hiding from? I say put them on the stand, let them face the accusers that have often dealt with so much at these men's hands, and let the courts decide.

If a priest has been defrocked, there's most likely a pretty compelling reason for it. The public has a right to know if these men — many of whom, from my experience, are charming, gregarious and generally likeable — are living in their neighborhoods, counseling their students and volunteering in their communities.

Church doctrine says sins can be washed away, right? If something doesn't change in the way these cases are handled, the sins of the father — and of the mother church who protects him — will become absolute.

Lakefront plan lauded; recycling pilot launched

Waukegan Mayor Richard Hyde and other city officials received the 2005 Daniel H. Burnham Award from the Metropolitan Planning Council in honor of the city's redevelopment plan for its lakefront.

The award was given at the planning council's annual luncheon at the Hyatt Regency Chicago Oct. 26.

About 1,100 business, government and civic leaders attended the event, where Chicago Mayor Richard Daley was the keynote speaker.

"It means a lot," Hyde said. "All the parties that are helping to guide us through the redevelopment process are certainly quite flattered. (The plan) is an ambitious one but we feel that this is an effective strategy to highlight and utilize a natural resource."

The redevelopment plan was born in 2002, when the city worked with the Urban Land Institute's Senior Resident Fellow on Public Policy William J. Hudnut and a panel of experts. Over the course of five days, they considered how to best use the 1,400 acres of lakefront that stretches along Waukegan.

In 2003, the city had penned its 20-year master plan, which called for new residential and commercial development, along with about 1/3 of the land set aside for parks and open spaces.

In race to stay

Warren Township Supervisor Sue

Simpson (R-Grayslake) has put to rest the rumors that she is dropping out of the Republican primary against State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion) because of health problems. "I'm glad that people are concerned about my health but I am very healthy and I am very much in this race," Simpson said. "In fact, my team is already out knocking on doors."

Early start

Despite her youthful good looks and unreserved energy, Republican Congressional candidate Kathy Salvi has been in politics a long time. Salvi was a Goldwater Girl. "I was four years ago and I wore a Goldwater sign at political rallies," That puts her "political debut" at 1964. Actually, she was born for her career in politics. Her grandfather was a state legislator in the 1940s and 50s. Salvi marvels at the possibility that if she's successful a year from now, she'll be representing much of the territory in Lake and McHenry counties that her grandfather Nick Keller served. "And it was the 8th Dist. then, too," Kathy added.

Keeping it clean

The Solid Waste Agency of Lake County has teamed up with Hainesville to promote recycling within the community.

Hyde: 3-year-old plan begins unfolding for 2-decade run.

Simpson: Not backing down; personal health not a problem.

SWALCO has set up six gigantic recycling containers at the Hainesville 7-Eleven and Citgo, 92 W. Belvidere Road, as part of a two-year pilot recycling program. Hainesville Mayor and SWALCO Director Ted Mueller said he is happy to be one of the first participating Lake County locations.

SWALCO recycling coordinator Peter Adrian is encouraging area residents to participate. "What we intend to do is offer the residents of Lake County the opportunity to recycle used beverage containers," he said. "If they have any containers that need to be recycled they can put it in these cans."

Eventually, more large recycling bottles will be set up around the county.

VIEWPOINT

Don't shortchange kids' arts education

In the dumbing down of American public schools standards, arts education always suffers. When funds run low, or worse, when money runs out, courses like art, music, theater and dance are the first to be cut. Unfortunately, there is a fair amount of public support for axing the arts, the idea being that teaching math, reading and science is the first responsibility of our schools. These stingy taxpayers are shortsighted.

Studies are mounting that children suffer when the arts are curtailed or eliminated. Educators have found that children's creative development is stifled without exposure or involvement in the arts. Nationwide, Illinois lags far behind in classes for the visual arts and music instruction. Local suburban districts do much better in maintaining an arts program than downstate rural schools, a study showed.

Involvement in the arts prepares students to be creative thinkers and problem solvers, one prominent educator noted. And you thought all those funny sounds from Brandon's trombone or the squeaks from Tiffany's clarinet were a waste of time.

Illinois Supt. of Education Randy Dunn leaves no doubt where he stands on the arts. The debate on the importance of arts education is "pretty much a settled issue—of course it is," Dunn declared, commenting on a state-wide survey sampling nearly 1,000 school superintendents and principals.

Granted, the educational process is a lot more complicated these days. More subjects, more mandates, more sports, more achievement testing, more of everything, not to mention all the distractions for youth in our modern culture. But taking a horn or artist's brush out of the hands of a young person is not the thing to do.

The Sox Nation

Thank you Chicago White Sox for a wonderful year and a World Series Experience. A band of over-achievers and a scrappy, happy-go-lucky manager turned Chicago from a one-team town into a two-team town. North Siders may still be devoted Cub followers, but they appreciate and admire a winner. Division St. no longer is a barrier. Mr. Guillen, tear down that wall!

Non-paying job

Even though the job no longer is compensated, Libertyville Township Supervisor Betty Ann Moore jumped at the opportunity of becoming a member of the Illinois State Toll Highway Authority board of directors. "I'm a citizen volunteer. No pay, but a great chance to make a contribution." The tollway board appointment used to be a political plum, passed out by the governor for favors and party service. Moore, a life-long Democrat, and Deerfield Mayor Steven Harris, Lake County's other tollway board representative, were due for confirmation by the Illinois Senate during October business.

Baseball history

Baseball history buffs will be excited to learn that Hall of Fame pitcher Bob Feller intends to toss out the first ball next April to open the 2006 season of the Great Lakes Captains, made up of sailors from Great Lake Naval Training Station. The Captains put up a 26-3 season this year and won a league title. Feller, now a resident of Gates Mills, Ohio, will celebrate his 88th birthday next week. The Cleveland fireballer was a member of the Great Lakes Bluejackets nine during World War II that held its own against major league competition. Feller recalls his Navy service with pride. A little known fact is that Feller chose to enlist when he carried a deferment as the only son of a farmer. Waukegan event planners and Great Lakes officials plan to make Feller's visit a notable event. Dates will be announced.

One man's family

At age five, grandson Tommy has some definite ideas about style. He can match up in the slouchy category for youngsters today, but he also likes to sport a shirt and tie from time to time for kindergarten classes. It's not surprising that Tom offered no argument about donating a tuxedo for his aunt's wedding in November.

PARENT'S PLACE

Dr. Sherri Singer

Dr. Singer,

We have a daughter who is 10 years old. She has had almost constant problems with school. Through the years we have had her extensively tested by Doctors and Psychologists, tutored consistently and still the problems exist. We have recently taken her to have her sight and hearing checked just to be sure that she is okay with those two areas. We are so tired of watching her struggle and having tutor after tutor after tutor tell us that they will do the trick, only to have the same thing afterward. Our daughter's main problem seems to be in the acquisition of information. She seems to stall out after being presented with something. This also happens with verbal directions outside of school. We used to think it was selective. In other words, we used to think that she would hear only what she wanted to hear. Well, after years of this and after finding out that her sight and hearing and IQ are fine with no notable problems, and that she is not having seizures and not having any notable neurological problems, we are really feeling at our wits end. Do you have any tidbits of information that might offer us some other options? Thank you. M.Z.

Hi M.Z.,

First, I'm sorry you have gone through so much and I'm thrilled that you have gone through so much. I know that sounds nuts, but it sounds like you cherish this little girl and are willing to do so much for her and that is terrific, but it sounds like you are having such a hard time. Second, although it sounds like you have had a hard road with this, please try not to get too down on the tutors. Tutors are usually wonderful people who really want to be 'the thing that really does it this time.' In my experience, most of the time, it isn't a problem with the tutor, but rather a problem with targeting the treatment. I'll explain in a moment. You need to understand that I really cannot give you direct advice about your little girl since this is not a personal, one-on-one consult, but I can tell you about a lot of other kids I have treated for the same problems and compare it to what you are dealing with. I'm sure that at this point, the last thing you want, is to meet with another Psychologist, but, if you want the personal touch on this, I would highly suggest that we talk in person, at some point.

When do you need to go beyond tutoring for learning problems?

As I said, most of the time I have seen this happen, the child is not adequately absorbing the tutoring or any other schoolwork, etc. because the child has a problem with absorbing things in his or her world in general. The child may have cognitive processing problems, or the inability to interpret, organize, focus on and remember material presented to him or her. It usually takes the form of the child having difficulty with handling multiple levels of sensory information, or multi-tasking. For example, the inability to maintain and remember visual and auditory information while writing. These kids have a hard time absorbing things that need to be absorbed through multiple senses. Since most things in a classroom and in life, in general, are usually presented in a multi-sensory way, these kids get stuck an awful lot. They get blitzed by all that is coming at them. Cognitive skills are learned skills and, therefore, can be trained. This problem with cognitive skills usually effects tutoring in a very bad way. You see, if there are cognitive processing problems occurring, the child suffering from this problem will not be completely absorbing the material taught by the tutor, teacher or parent. Some or all of the material doesn't get in. So, the same shut down that is happening in the classroom end up happening with the tutor too. I also find that these kids develop almost a panic reaction to feeling the loss of information. They know when it's happening and they shut down. These processing skills need to be trained and practiced so that the child doesn't get stuck anymore. I call it, 'Deer in the headlights syndrome.' Basically, the child feels inundated by too much information and begins to lose parts or all of what is coming at them. They basically freeze up. It happens to a lot of kids. What can begin to happen is that tutoring then takes on the task of constantly having to be an aid for the child. While having help every so often is not a terrible thing, if it is required all the time, a dependency can get formed over time and eventually the child may always expect to have someone there to "un-freeze" him or her or organize things for him or her. My problem with this, is that later education usually requires the ability to work on one's own. It requires an independence of learning skills. Training cognitive skills, or teaching kids to do this on their own, trains that independence to happen. It allows the child to use their own brain to organize material as opposed to having to have help all the time. It also trains kids to feel confident in the ability to handle more of the material presented to them. After training, their absorption of the material, when it is presented, is faster and more efficient so that studying that material later becomes less burdensome and less scary. This in itself can "thaw" the freezing up.

Now, not all kids have this problem. If a child's problem has been academic in nature, or needing a little bit more academic instruction in a certain area, and they are taking it in and doing well with it, more than likely, that child is not a candidate for training. However, a child who has had constant tutoring and testing without significant results, and is not getting it or improving, is more than likely a good candidate for processing training. Whether your child is that child can only be determined by an evaluation.

Don't get fooled by normal IQ either. Many kids with normal and even high IQ's can be also dealing with specific processing skill deficits. They are just great compensators and can compensate for weak skills with strong ones. They also can become very stressed out doing this and many times I see people with young children who are showing signs of anxiety disorders related to school. They are very bright and can sense that something is not clicking right. This causes stress and they can end up with symptoms like stomach problems and even vomiting when they are required to go to school. Parents are puzzled by the child with the high average or gifted IQ who is having this kind of anxiety response. It does happen.

I wish you luck and again, don't come down on the tutors. Tutors do really have the best wishes for your child and other kids too. It's just that sometimes, kids need more than tutoring. You are great parents because you obviously love this child a lot and are very invested in your child. This kind of support is going to help her a lot and keep her going along. Hang in there.

CLC approves new faculty positions for next year

The College of Lake County board of trustees approved the creation of four new full-time faculty positions for the 2006-2007 academic year.

It said the four positions were needed to expand counseling services at the Southlake Educational Center and to accommodate enrollment growth in the criminal justice and mathematics programs, as well as to develop a new program in medical office assisting.

In addition to the new positions, the college plans to hire eight other faculty members for the 2006-2007 academic year, replacing four retiring instructors and filling four other faculty vacancies.

"In the last several years, many long-term faculty at the college have retired, and this trend is continuing this year," said Dr. DeRionne Pollard, vice president for educational affairs. "As in recent years, we will conduct a nationwide search for the new and replacement faculty positions. We are looking for individuals with strong academic credentials and teaching talent who will reflect the diversity of our student body."

Smoking policies changed

The board adopted a more restrictive policy on smoking. The revised policy prohibits smoking and use of tobacco products inside college buildings and vehicles, and restricts smoking areas to designated entrances at the back of buildings on the Grayslake campus and to designated outside areas on the Lakeshore Campus.

At the Southlake Educational Center in Vernon Hills, smoking will be allowed only in the parking lot.

Previously on the Grayslake campus, smoking was allowed inside a designated area adjacent to the game room off Lancers cafeteria and in designated areas outside entrances. At the Lakeshore Campus, smoking was previously allowed inside the North Building in a designated area on the lower level. At the Southlake Educational Center, smoking was previously allowed outside the building entrance.

"The new policy responds to our concern to protect the health of our college community, while also respecting individuals' rights," board chairman William Griffin said after the meeting.

Tax levy approved

In other action, the board approved a resolution estimating the college's 2005 property tax levy and authorized a public hearing on the levy. The hearing will be on Nov. 22, at 7 p.m. in the board room on the Grayslake Campus.

ATTENTION PET OWNERS We Do Not Knowingly Accept Ads For Free/Giveaway Animals

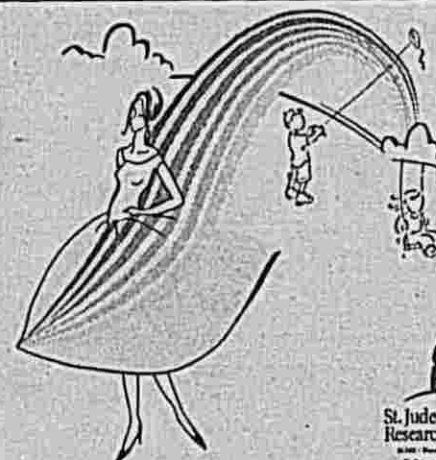

If you must give up your beloved pet, please consider these suggestions.
*Free animal ads suggest that there is something wrong with the animal, or that it has no value.
*Some people who respond to these free animal ads are imposters and are only concerned about making a profit and not the animal's welfare.
*Charging a fee to a potential pet owner confirms the responsibility of pet ownership for an entire lifetime of that pet. For more information, please contact the Humane Society.

FASHION SHOW EXTRAVAGANZA

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 13

If you have children, know children, or ever were a child, help support the miracle of life at the 11th annual

Dream A Little Dream
Fashion Show benefiting
St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

On Sunday, November 13th, over 1,000 guests will join together at the Rosemont Convention Center to celebrate St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, the premier research and treatment center for children with catastrophic diseases.

The Fashion Show will feature contemporary fashions by Zazz Productions, fun by York Furrier, and jewelry by International Art Jewelers. Open for viewing at 10:30 a.m., the Dream Raffle includes over 200 prizes such as: diamond ring; weekend getaways; fur coat; sporting tickets; signed memorabilia; skyboxes for Cubs, Bulls/Blackhawks, the Circus; and much more.

Attendees will enjoy a luncheon, entertainment, and fashions in an event that features Honorary Co-Chairs Patti Blagojevich, First Lady of Illinois, and Katherine Stephens, First Lady of Rosemont; and Master of Ceremonies, Allison Payne of WGN-TV News.

Located in Memphis, Tennessee, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has treated more than 19,000 children from across the United States and 60 foreign countries without regard to race, religion or ability to pay. The late entertainer, Danny Thomas founded the hospital in 1962, with the mission that "no child should die in the dawn of life." As the hospital celebrates its 42nd year, physicians and researchers are coming closer to making Danny's dream a reality.

Tickets are $60 each, with tables of ten for $600, Dream Tables for $1,000, and Runway Tables for $2,000. And for the first time, tickets are available for our exclusive Ireland Trip Raffle. Only 500 tickets will be sold. Winner to be announced at the event (winner need not be present). Licensed by City of Rosemont, IL. ALSAC-St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Permittee.

For more information on buying tickets or tables, donating to the raffle, or buying an ad in the adbook, go to <http://www.shaker.com/stjudeshow>. Or call the Midwest Regional St. Jude Office: 800-621-5359. The Rosemont Convention Center is located at 5555 N. River Road in Rosemont.

220 Help Wanted Full-Time220 Help Wanted Full-TimeToday is a GREAT Day for a Job Search
By Scott T. Fleischmann

Last week I spoke with a friend who is a broker in the residential real estate market. He told me that his business was doing incredibly well. When I asked about the fact that this time of year was traditionally slow in his industry, he replied, "It is only slow for those who believe it is slow."

He went on to explain that, although there are fewer homes being sold during this period, some people still need to sell a home and some people need to buy. The key is finding those needy buyers and sellers. People are transferred. They need to sell their existing home and buy a home in a new location. Others want to move to a more moderate climate before the snow flies. They are not willing to wait for spring to sell their existing home and buy one in a new location. According to my friend, any time is the right time to buy or sell a house. The only variables are the needs of the person who is buying or selling.

The same is true of a job search. There is some truth to the thought that hiring slows in the last few months of the year. However, some jobs still need to be filled. Most companies cannot function without the accountants who prepare the financial statements. If one of these employees takes a medical leave or quits, the employer needs to fill that job quickly. The same is true of the people that do cleaning, building maintenance, or supply the medical needs for a hospital.

June and March are traditionally the best months for hiring. However, there are people who need jobs at the end of the year. Those people should seek those jobs although the market is slower than in spring. Understanding the hiring cycle is especially important to getting the desired job during an off-peak hiring season.

Most companies function on a calendar year for financial decisions. At the beginning of the year, the budget has been established but most organizations are still recovering from the holidays. As people return to work from vacations and time spent with family, they are getting back up to speed in the office. January is slow for hiring, but it resumes in February.

March is usually a time of high activity with job fairs and hiring of students that will graduate in spring. The activity continues at this level through June. The summer often slows because of vacations and because many positions have been filled in the past few months.

In early September, the budgeting for the coming year begins. This has a twofold effect on hiring. Firstly, managers need to do a more detailed analysis of the current year's hiring. If there is unspent money in the budget, they need to spend it or they will lose that money in the next budget. However, they must spend time preparing the next budget which leaves them less time to consider hiring decisions. Recognizing this dichotomy helps job candidates prepare for a fourth quarter job search.

Today is always the best day to plan for the future. For those who want a different job, the key is to find the needy hiring manager regardless of the season. Understanding the hiring cycle is a good first step toward finding your new job before year's end.

Pet OF THE WEEK

CARLTON

Carlton is a smart boy that knows sit and down and can run as fast as the wind. He also enjoys long walks. When he is done running, he makes sure you understand he is ready for some loving. He comes and sit in front of you, gives you his paw, and when you are done petting him, he gently hugs you and gives you a kiss or two. Carlton is looking for a quiet adult home as the only four-legged member.

The ABCs

of Writing a Classified ad that Works

Avoid Abbreviations.

A few accepted and recognizable abbreviations are OK, but an ad full of them just confuses the readers. They will go on to the next ad rather than decipher yours. A good rule of thumb is "Spell it out, or leave it out."

Be Available.

List your telephone number so that potential buyers will know how to contact you. State the best hours to call so they'll know when you can be reached.

Consider Your Readers.

Put yourself in the readers' place. If you were considering buying this item, what would you want to know about it?

Give the item's age, condition, size, color, brand name and any other important information needed to describe it completely and accurately. Sell the benefits of owning the item.

Don't Exaggerate.

Misleading information may bring potential buyers to your home but it will not help you make the sale. You'll lose the prospect's trust and faith as well as the sale.

Include the Price.

Price is one of the biggest concerns of classified shoppers. Ads that list prices will get their attention first. Including price also helps you avoid inquiries from callers not in your price range.

Mustangs hope sister acts put them back in winning habit

By Rob Backus
Sports Editor

If you didn't know any better, you'd swear it was a case of déjà vu, or maybe a hallucination. But if you've been to a Mundelein girls cross-country meet the last four years, you've likely had a similar experience.

As the runners headed down the stretch of last Saturday's North Suburban Conference Meet at Lake Forest High School's West campus, Mundelein senior Erica Moffitt was, as always, near the front of the pack, crossing the finish line in eighth place with a time of 18:55 on the three-mile course. A little more than 30 seconds later, you would have seen her cross the finish line again, wearing a different number.

But she's not cheating and your mind isn't playing tricks on you. The second runner is her twin sister Jessica and even their coaches and teammates sometimes have trouble telling them apart. So they came up with a plan.

"I'm right-handed and (Jessica's) left-handed, so I wear a watch on my left wrist and she wears one on her right," Erica said.

"If they forget to wear their watches, we're in trouble," said their coach, John Ozmanski.

Jessica put that theory to the test during last Wednesday's practice. As she was running alongside Ozmanski, she covered up her watch and asked the coach to guess which Moffitt she was. He guessed correctly.

"I asked him how he knew and he said it's because of the freckle I have on my face," Jessica said.

That's about the only thing that sets them apart. Not only are they twins, they also have similar personalities and a talent for running.

Both made All-Conference in last Saturday's meet. It was the second such spot for Erica, who was also All-Regional in 2004. Both are looking to lead Mundelein to its first state meet appearance in recent memory.

"They're both in our top five and they're excellent runners," Ozmanski said. "They're extremely hard workers and tough competitors. They're excellent teammates and two of the nicest kids you'll ever meet."

And they aren't only fast on the track. You should see them shop.

"We like a lot of the same clothes, so when we pick out the same thing one of us has to put it back," Erica said. "It's first-come, first-serve, so we have to shop pretty fast."

Some sisters might have some animosity from time to time, especially given the amount of time they're in proximity with one another, but there's none of that with the Moffitts.

"It's great to look ahead and see her up ahead; it helps push me because I want to catch up to her," Jessica said. "It's also cool to have someone on the team who's going through a lot of the same things."

Mandy Ranck

Double the pleasure, double the run

Amazingly, the Moffitts aren't alone, although they are the only twins on the team. Mundelein's squad also boasts another dynamic duo in senior Betsy Ranck and her sophomore sister, Mandy, who was an All-NSC selection after finishing ninth last Saturday.

"They're both so important to the team," Ozmanski said of the Ranck sisters. "Betsy is our captain and an ideal team leader. Even though her times are down this year, she works hard every day. It just shows the kind of character she has."

"And Mandy is the ideal competitor, she has the biggest heart in the world. Some athletes have to grow into that, and some are born like that. She was obviously a born competitor."

She wasn't exactly born that way, but Mandy has been running since she was 8 years old. And it's become a love-hate relationship.

"I love running so much. I love the competition and the challenge," Mandy said. "And I really hate to lose."

Like her sister, Betsy has also been running for close to a decade. And

Erica Moffitt

Jessica Moffitt

those years are starting to take their toll.

"My body must be getting old," Betsy said with a laugh. "I've been doing it since fifth grade and my body's changed, so my times aren't as good as they used to be."

But she doesn't let that get her down.

"No matter what, I still try to stay positive," Betsy said. "I really wanted to be a captain, and it's fun to get to know all the girls and talk to them."

Both Erica Moffitt and Mandy Ranck narrowly missed qualifying for the state meet at last year's sectional. While Ozmanski is confident in their chances to make it this year, he has another goal in mind.

"We should make it out of (the Libertyville Regional), and if we can close out split in our top five, we'll be right there for a state berth," he said.

With five teams coming out of the upcoming Schaumburg Sectional, Palatine, Barrington and Fremd appear to be near locks for three of those spots. That leaves the Mustangs, Carmel, Libertyville, Lake Forest and Conant to battle for the final two berths.

Luckily, the Mustangs got the job done, narrowly making the cut in the Libertyville sectional with a fifth place finish. Erica Moffitt led the way with a seventh place finish overall with a time of 18:53 while Jessica took the fourth spot on the team, finishing at no. 30 overall in the meet.

"If everyone does their job and does what they're capable of doing, I think we can make it," Mandy said.

The lame duck sports editor

As I'm writing this, I have (looking at my watch) less than two hours to go at Lakeland Newspapers. And I can't help but realize how lucky I've been to cover this area's prep sports over the last six years.

I've seen some of the best football and basketball the state has to offer. I've covered just about every sport in the alphabet, from baseball to wrestling, and I've seen some amazing things and met some amazing people. And I'm sorry to be leaving now, because I think the next few months will bring even more.

But I figured, since I'm going to be 1,600 miles away by the time this comes to print, I might as well spell out what I see on the Lake County sports horizon. If I'm wrong, I won't be around to see how stupid my picks were six months from now. And if I'm right, it would be a first. So here goes a whole lot of nothin'.

In November, Warren will make a deep run into the Class 8A playoffs. They have a shot of taking home a championship, but there are a lot of teams (especially a potential rematch with Stevenson) standing in their way.

Also in November, a volleyball team from Crystal Lake will thump whichever Lake County team wins the Stevenson Sectional, extending the county's quest for its first state champ another year.

In December, January and February...umm...kind of light months there. There will be some made baskets and some missed. Someone will air ball a free throw and miss badly on a dunk attempt. There's also some wrestling and gymnastics (watch out for Carmel), if that's your thing.

Now my favorite month of the high school sports year — March. Zion's boys team will again win 20-plus games without playing anyone, and then lose in the sectional semifinals. Warren, with new 6-foot-6 East Coach transfer Julius Jones in tow, will finally top Waukegan and win a sectional for the first time since 2000. Then, like the Bulldogs, they'll fall to Jon Scheyer and Glenbrook North in the Super-Sectional.

In April...it will rain, and rain, and rain, making up for last spring, when I only had two games cancelled due to weather. In May and June, Mundelein's Lauren Ott will lead the Mustangs to the Elite

TENNIS

Grayslake tennis settles down after years in flux

By Dan Patrick

Sports Editor

Four coaches, four years – nothing can be more trying on a sports program than bringing in a different leader every season. Yet this is exactly what Grayslake Central players have dealt with since the senior class of 2006 first tried on Ram uniforms.

Grayslake's first-year coach Jill Tomasello was given the difficult task of not only getting her team ready for the season, but picking up the pieces of a program left without a leader for four straight seasons.

"When we started off, some were standoffish because some of them didn't know if they were going to have me stay around to coach," Tomasello said. "Some didn't like the way I was coaching as well, so we compromised I think they improved quite a bit and even our coach last year who's now at Lakes (Bryan Plinske) said he was impressed with the team."

Overall, the team amassed a 6-7 overall record, a mark many would not consider spectacular but a record that garners some respect for the fresh coach.

Tennis is a sport that involves a unique dichotomy between team and personal success and where the team was lackluster, some individuals truly excelled. Case in point, junior state qualifier Darlene Naolhu, who finished third in the Warren Sectional Tournament.

According to Tomasello, Naolhu's success has come thanks to a healthy dose of friendly rivalry with teammate Lynn Pogensee-wei.

"I think there's been a rivalry between Lynn Pogensee-wei and Darlene (Naolhu)," Tomasello said. "Darlene's worked hard, and she's a consistent player without an overpowering serve, whereas Lynn has had the spotlight for a while on the Grayslake tennis team. I think it was nice for Darlene to be able to break through and make it to state."

Playing the relative second fiddle has also given Naolhu the advantage of being able to fly under the radar on the state scene, allowing her to surprise opponents in the state tournament.

"Overall, she (Naolhu) has been kind of overlooked because last year (Pogensee-wei) qualified fourth in the state," Tomasello said. "Naolhu's a great athlete and a great player. But she should be able to catch some people off guard because she just kind of came from the murky waters and appeared."

Having such a one-two singles punch has given Tomasello some big plans for next season. Despite all of the turmoil within the program, the rookie coach was actually disappointed with the team's showing in 2005. Perhaps 2006 will write a different story.

"I'd really like to get second next year in the sectional, I'd really like to come back and get some nice, big wins," Tomasello said. "The team didn't do so well, especially in the Fox Valley Conference. We had a poor showing in the conference tournament and we walked into sectionals with our heads down, but we took third place in the tournament and gave Warren a real run for their money, which should give us some confidence for next season."

While the singles game should bring the Rams lots of success for next season, Pogensee-wei and Naolhu won't be alone in Grayslake Central's talent pool.

"Our number one doubles team of Justine Berger and Amanda Cannon did an incredible job," Tomasello said. "They wanted to play doubles together and it was a good match between them, so both improved incredibly."

Other Rams on the horizon include Amanda Cannon and Jill Lindsey while the duo of Cata Caro and Kelly Runge will be returning for action next season with fellow doubles team of Sam Parker and Megan Hutchins will also try on Ram uniforms for another season.

Just like Naolhu, Tomasello believes she has yet another diamond in the rough with Caro.

"I really think Cata Caro is our unnoticed talent," Tomasello said. "She's just looking for the right partner for doubles and she would even be a good singles player on her own. I think that by next year she'll really wow us."

With a long term coach finally within their grasp, the Rams can finally settle down and work on the transition that every other team takes for granted: the transition to another year.

"I'm excited about next season, they'll do great next year," Tomasello said. "With four different coaches in the last four years, they're just excited to have a returning coach for once. I think that security should really help us get better in the off-season."

Libertyville (above) won it all last year, and Carmel (far right) did it in '03. Who will be Lake County's next state football champion?

Five alive

Will another Lake County be state champs this year? Five area teams will soon find out.

The IHSA state tournament has been very good to Lake County football in the past few years. The area has had two straight state champions, with Carmel taking the 6A crown in 2003 and Libertyville following suit with a 7A championship in 2004. Have the stars aligned for Lake County to make it a three-peat? If this year's tournament entrants Antioch, Carmel, Grant, Libertyville and Warren have anything to say about it, it will. Only time will tell, but until then, Lakeland will be there every step of the way for 2005.

Carmel (7-2) has a tough road ahead if it hopes to reclaim the state title it won in 2003.

CARMEL VS. HIGHLAND PARK

Some rules are absolute in prep sports and one rule is "Momentum is Everything." Luckily for Carmel coach Andy Bitto, his Corsairs have truckloads of it. After finishing the regular season on a three-game winning streak, capped off with a 34-31 double-overtime win over Marist, Bitto said his players could not be in better shape.

"We're pretty excited about it (the playoffs) after last week's big double-overtime victory," Bitto said. "I think it was the right type of game to get us ready for the postseason."

According to Bitto, the 2005 season strongly contrasts last year's run as the Sophomore defensive back Aaron Kwasigroch joins the ranks of a high-powered Corsair defense. The unit has held 5 teams to 7 points or less and even shut out three teams.

FRIDAY, OCT. 28, 7:30 p.m.
In Mundelein, 1 Carmel Parkway

'04 Corsairs came into the playoffs battling injuries and a two-game losing streak.

This year, the team is ready with all hands on deck, highlighted by junior running back Jim Potempa who has amassed 861 yards and 10 touchdowns while John Brennan added 664 yards and five touchdowns of his own.

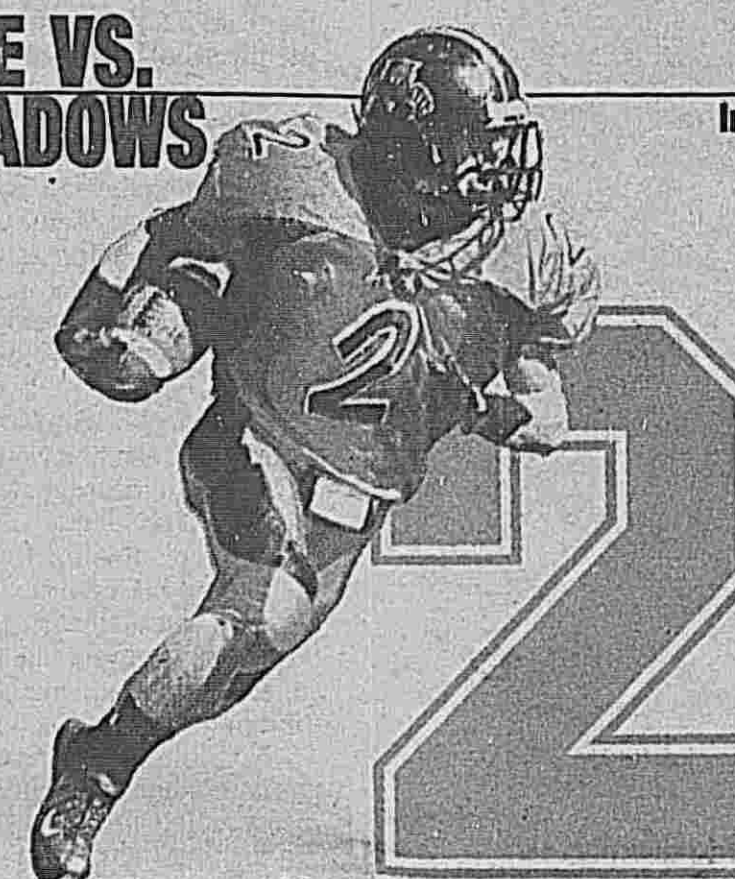

The Highland Park Giants feature a pass first, ask questions later West Coast-style offense. Offensively, Bitto's main concern comes in the form of fullback Chris Coker while the defensive front line, headed by nose guard Keller Ronney, could be trouble.

LIBERTYVILLE VS. ROLLING MEADOWS

The difference between Libertyville and Rolling Meadows can't be found in their identical records (6-3) or even their playing styles as both teams carry balanced offensive attacks.

What is different is the outcomes of their final games as the Mustangs lost a tough game to Prospect while the Wildcats destroyed Zion-Benton 42-8 in the regular season finale.

"Having a big win over Zion we're anxious to get rolling again, losing two in a row doesn't sit well and it was good for us to get that out of our system," Libertyville coach Randy Kuceyeski said. "It's nothing new for us to be in the playoffs, but we're trying to crank up the intensity we need to win."

Kuceyeski is also excited about the prospect of his team coming in injury-free. He is also confident that Ryan Kennedy can make things happen on both sides of the ball while senior quarterback Cameron Turner has amassed 959 yards and 12 touchdowns during the season.

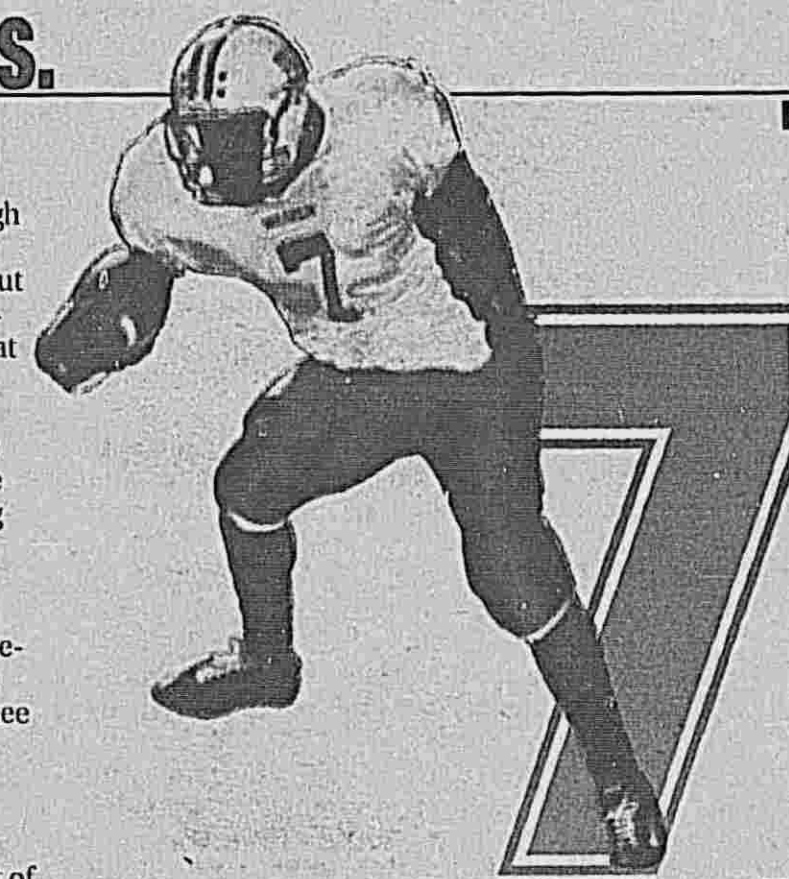

The Wildcats have spent a majority of their time practicing for junior tight end/linebacker Mike Garoppolo, who is Rolling Meadows' top receiver. Garoppolo, along with Matt McFall and Aaron Digs make their defense a formidable weapon.

WARREN VS. LANE TECH

After last week's tough loss to Stevenson, the first question out of nearly every reporter's mouth was "What are you going to do if you meet Stevenson again?"

Coach Dave Mohapp answered as if he knew the question had been coming all along: "I have great respect for their team, maybe we will meet them again but there will definitely be some tough teams in the way before we would see Stevenson again."

Before anyone can dream up rematches between two of the state's best, Mohapp and the rest of his team must deal with the 6-3 Lane Tech Indians led by junior running back

Senior running back Mitchell Moore has provided the punch to the Blue Devil rushing offense, gaining 907 yards and 15 touchdowns on 130 carries.

William Moorehead and quarterback Matt Richard. Both players are highly touted and could give the Warren defense some trouble.

But the Blue Devils have some offensive weapons of their own in running back Mitchell Moore, (907 rushing yards, 15 touchdowns) quarterback Joe DeVries (1,493 passing yards, 16 touchdowns), and receivers Marcus Lewis (663 receiving yards, 7 touchdowns) and Matt Mose (525 receiving yards, 5 touchdowns).

The impressive core of offensive players, coupled with a defense that has held opponents to just over 14 points a game should be tough.

ANTIOCH VS. CRYSTAL LAKE SOUTH

The pressure to follow up a good season can be rather difficult. After fighting to make to follow up a successful 7-4 run in 2004, Sequoit coach Del Pechauer has done his best adjusting to the NSC Prairie division, finishing with a 5-4 mark in 2005.

But Pechauer and his players have to adjust to a high-powered Crystal Lake South offense that has brought the Gators more than 33 points per game and contributed to an impressive 8-1 record.

Senior RB Dan Goggin leads the Sequoit offense with a strong running game, following in the footsteps of departed Antioch stars Nick Nathan and Nate Hughes.

potential problems for Antioch's defense.

The Sequoits might have a very formidable opponent on its hands with the Gators, but they will also have a good crop of veterans that could spell "upset" for Antioch's opponents.

Sequit quarterback Bryan Vos has a lot of options, including senior running backs Dan Goggin and John Brinser along with junior fullback Brad Fortney.

On the defensive side of the ball, Crystal Lake will have to work through a veteran defensive line, highlighted by seniors Steve Nystrom and Tim Larsen.

The 7-2 Vernon Hills Cougars are riding high off of a six game winning streak coming into their match-up against the 6-3 Prairie Ridge Wolves.

The Cougars' only losses are against the undefeated Stevenson Patriots and a tough 8-7 loss to Highland Park, so expect Vernon Hills to make short work of the Wolves in this one.

Oak Park-River Forest (5-4)
at Stevenson (9-0)
Oct. 28, 7 p.m.

Stevenson has quite a bit of momentum with a 9-0 record and a double-overtime victory over the 8-1 Warren Blue Devils.

Patriot running backs Michael Breckheimer and Carl Johnson provide quite the 1-2 punch for a high-powered offense that averages 41 points per game.

Many are expecting a rematch with Warren in the 8A bracket, but the 5-4 Huskies might have something to say about that.

Lake Zurich (5-4)
at Prospect (8-1)
Oct. 28, 7:30 p.m.

The 8-1 Prospect Knights carry an impressive 8-1 record, but their strength of schedule is suspect as only three of their opponents are playoff-bound.

However, the 5-4 Lake Zurich Bears aren't much better off as they have lost all four games against playoff teams.

The Bears have also been bit by the injury bug as stars James Becker and Brett Sippel are out with injury.

Westinghouse (7-2)
at North Chicago (7-2)
Oct. 28, 7 p.m.

The 7-2 North Chicago Warhawks look like they have the most evenly matched game by record alone as Westinghouse also carries a 7-2 record, but the Warhawks have faced more playoff teams and the North Chicago defense, led by linebacker Kevin Green has kept opponents to single digits in all but four games.

The Warhawks are also riding a two-game winning streak while Westinghouse has its own two game streak on the losing end.

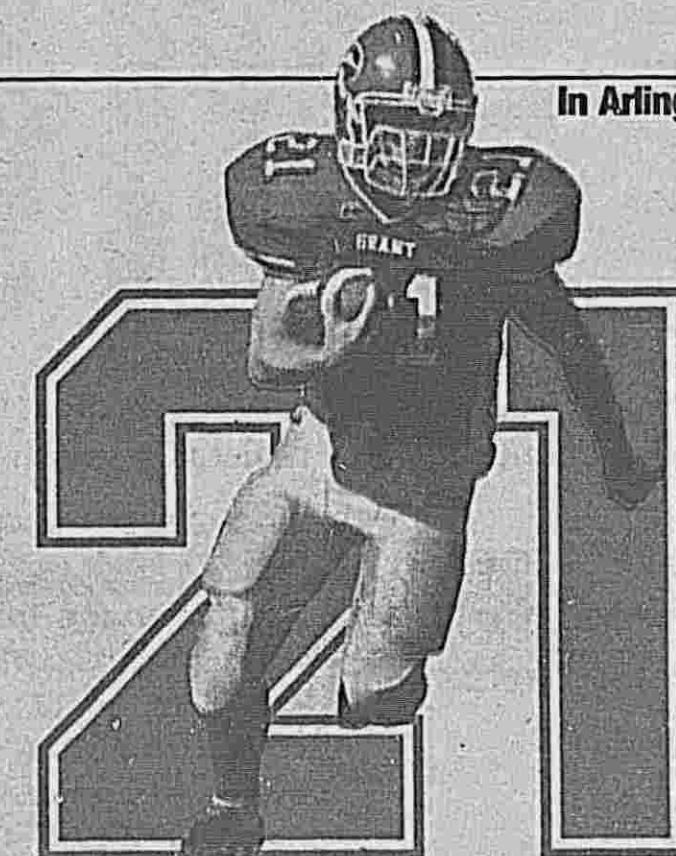

GRANT VS. ST. VIATOR

Every member of Grant's football team hopes its version of sports athleticism continues to run in the family for the Class 6A playoffs.

The Bulldogs return to The Dance for the first time in three years when they travel to St. Viator for a first round clash.

Likely, the Bulldogs have some family heritage working for them. While seniors Matt Behm and Bobby Madlener are the third members of their families to play, the Bulldogs know it will take a total team effort against the 8-1 ESCC runner-up Lions.

Behm has 641 yards

Quarterback Rick Howell sits at 58-111 passing for 751 yards, 4 touchdowns and 6 interceptions.

Joe Barczak is the top receiver with 37 catches for 655 yards and four TDs.

The Bulldogs will need that and more against the 8-1 Lions, who are led by Division-I prospect quarterback Jared Funk.

"We want to stay within our base package and add few wrinkles," Grant coach Mark Barczak said. "He's (Funk) a D-1 QB who can throw on the run to any of four or five guys."

Waukegan bids farewell to a legendary class

By Dan Patrick

Sports Editor

In addition suffering through a hard-fought 2-1 loss against the Mundelein Mustangs in the regional final last Saturday, the Waukegan soccer team has been forced to deal with yet another loss that would have any prep coach crying.

Senior Jesus Lopez, who set the school record in goals this season with 34, has now played his last game in a Bulldog uniform.

The graduation of a prolific player can hurt any school sports team, but in order to correctly gauge Lopez's skill, one must take into account his stats. His 34 goals in the 2005 season broke his own record of 27 set in 2004, and he also holds the career goal record, giving the ball 69 trips to the back of the net. If that's not impressive enough, he's also the team's first All-State selection in 15 years and was named to the All-Midwest team.

"He's been playing for three years at the varsity level and the boy can score, that's for sure," Waukegan coach Mike Berrie said. "He's been fun to watch throughout it all, but unfortunately, he'll be leaving. Of course, he broke his own record and we even played fewer games. In our conference, there was only one team that completely shut him down, every other team he gets either a goal or an assist every time."

Berrie said his talent is at a level rarely seen in prep soccer, blending physical attributes with pure vision for the game.

"He's got incredible speed and he's got some of the best ball control I've ever seen," Berrie said. "He can do whatever wants with the ball. He would get double- or even triple-teamed and he would break out of it."

Of course, a team can't amass a 13-6-3 and come within one goal of reaching the IHSA sectional with only one player on the field. As good as Lopez was, the rest of the senior class wasn't too shabby either.

"Jonathon Hernandez and Diego Damueio those were my All-NSC honorable mention players," Berrie said. "Those guys are both impressive players who could do some things with the ball but they're also seniors, so we're going to have to do without them as well."

The Class of 2005 was certainly good to the Waukegan soccer team. Unfortunately, the Bulldogs must go on without a core of players that has carried them for three seasons.

"The loss of those three (Hernandez, Damueio and Lopez) is going to be very tough. Diego has been playing at Varsity since he was freshman and he's been a big part of the success we've had for the last few years."

All hope is not lost within the Waukegan soccer scene. The returning starters include a good core of sophomores that should aid the Bulldogs for years to come.

"We've got eight of 11 returning and they will be tough to replace that's for sure, but the freshman team only lost three times this year," Berrie said.

Berrie expects the biggest return from sophomore goalkeeper Alex Gonzalez and junior Jame Castrejon.

While the future looks bright for the team, a season-ending loss is still a loss and that fact is not lost on Berrie.

"I wasn't pleased with the loss against Mundelein, I was certainly disappointed," Berrie said. "It was tough to see those guys go out, it was disappointment, but hopefully we'll be able to do something next season."

CROSS-COUNTRY

Antioch unhurt by Lakes High split

By Dan Patrick

Sports Editor

It's tough to adjust to a new environment, whether it's a new room in a new house and especially if it's a new school. While Lakes High School has brought a new state-of-the-art facility to northwest Lake County, it has also caused some tension within the average student's life — especially the average athlete's life.

Antioch girls cross country coach Dick Harland was forced to adjust to a very unique situation after losing half of his team to the new Lakes High School. Despite having his talent pool cut, Harland and his Sequoits have orchestrated a fine season and have even advanced past the regionals in last weekend's IHSA tournament with a respectable third place finish.

"Things are going very well, probably much better than I expected at the beginning of the year," Harland said. "For a young team, I think we're doing very well and we should continue to do so in the future. Right now, my number one runner turned out to be a freshman (Jen Naegele), and both of my two and three runners are freshmen, (Erin Schoenfelder and Lauren Colette) so we should be able to extend this for some time and I haven't had that for the last few years."

The change was difficult for Harland and his team, not only on a competitive level, but on a personal level as well.

"It was terrible to see them in another uniform because I really miss them as runners and as people," Harland said. "That was a nice group of girls too and it was hard for me to not talk to them during the meets we had with Lakes."

The freshman class isn't the only thing that's brought success for Antioch's team. Senior Sarah Brown also put together quite a fine performance during the regional tournament, placing second on her team and eighth overall with a 21:03 time, a personal record for the veteran runner. Brown, along with fellow senior Erica Sowell and junior Katie Westre, kept the grueling tests of endurance palatable for the younger members of the team.

"I think Sarah was a good influence on the girls this year, she was one of the co-captains with Katie Westre this year and they both had a lot of good imagination and knew how to keep the practices light," Harland said. "I know for a fact that the other girls really looked up to them throughout the season and I think that type of leadership was important for us to do as well as we did."

Amazingly, Brown wasn't the only one rewriting the record books for the Sequoits. The entirety of Antioch's competing squad actually set PR's during the regional meet, including Naegele, Brown Schoenfelder, Colette, sisters Alexa and Nicole Hajnacki along with Megan O'Connor. Such a showing has inspired some big dreams from the veteran coach.

"If things go well as I expect, I think we've got a legitimate chance of making it past the sectionals this year," Harland said. "We had a very, very good regional and all seven of them had personal bests out of five times running that course."

While the team is enjoying a good run at this point in the season, it hasn't always been this good for the Sequoit roster. The school split, coupled with costly injuries, left Harland and his team in turmoil for much of the early part of the season.

"When I started this year, I had two other seniors and one got mono while other hurt her leg. Before that, I thought I had a very good chance at winning the division," Harland said. "But we should be largely intact after this year and I think for next year it'll be interesting in the area because Grant will be up there again. We've had our fun with them this year and they should have just as good of a team as they did this year."

The remedy for Harland's initial worries turned out to be a sensational freshman class coupled with a few unexpected surprises for the veteran coach. O'Connor, a sophomore, began the season looking for a way to simply tune up for other athletic endeavors, but quickly became one of the squad's best, finishing with a time of 22:54 at the regional meet.

"I had a girl (O'Connor) who came up and joined the cross country team just to get in shape and initially, she could only run a 29:34, but Saturday she managed to get better than a 23," Harland said. "She just sort of caught on over the course of the season and she just took over six minutes off of her time. She just started running and got in with the rest of the girls and all of a sudden, it clicked for her."

O'Connor wasn't alone in her surprising discovery of speed. Colette, a freshman, also found speed her coach didn't know she had as she settled into the cross country season.

"Lauren Colette took almost five minutes off her time from the beginning of the season to now and as a freshman, that's something that's really exciting," Harland said.

While the Lakes split has brought its fair share of troubles to the Antioch Cross Country team, it has also brought the remaining group closer together.

"The girls on my team really enjoy each other's company and that shows how tightly knit of a group they are," Harland said. "No matter what they do in the sectionals this season, I'll be proud of this team."

More rabid bats found

The Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center continues to urge Lake County residents to avoid contact with bats.

Two bats, found in Libertyville and Round Lake Beach, tested positive for rabies. In both incidents, there were no human bites or scratches involved. Two other bats, found in Waukegan and Ingleside, tested positive for rabies in August and September of this year.

Rabies is an almost always fatal disease that affects the nervous system of humans and other mammals. Most commonly, people get rabies from the bite of a rabid animal. In other cases, people can contract rabies if any infectious material from a rabid animal, such as saliva, comes in contact with one's nose, mouth, an open wound or gets directly into the eyes.

The Health Department is urging anyone who has direct contact with a bat or notices a bat acting in an unusual manner, such as flying in daylight or lying on the ground or in your home, to contact the Health Department at 847-949-9925. If the bat is inside of your house, do not chase it away because it may be needed for rabies testing.

The Health Department can also refer callers to bat exclusion companies and provide information on methods for excluding bats. Bats can be excluded from living quarters by covering chimneys and vents with half-inch hardware cloth screens, by installing draft guards beneath doors, and by sealing any other possible access routes, especially around screen doors, windows and plumbing.

Bats potentially can enter holes as small as 3/4 in diameter. They do not chew insulation or otherwise make new holes. Their entries must then be covered or plugged. For small crevices, silicone caulking may help. If a large bat colony must be evicted from a wall or attic, careful observations should be made at dusk to find entry holes (also sometimes recognizable by stains around used holes or crevices or by droppings beneath). The holes should be plugged after the bats emerge to feed, which they do during evening hours.

Bates recognized for work in dropout program

A man on a mission to keep Lake County youth in school was awarded a Crystal Star for his efforts.

Edward Bates, Director of Attendance Services for the Lake County Regional Office of Education, earned an individual award in the 2005 National Dropout Prevention Network's Crystal Star Awards of Excellence in Dropout Recovery, Intervention and Prevention. The award was presented at the annual conference in Santa Clara, Calif.

The awards, given annually by the Clemson University-based National Dropout Prevention Centers/Network, identify and bring national recognition to outstanding individuals and programs that have made significant contributions to dropout prevention.

Bates was nominated for the award because of his work with the Positive Alternative Student Services program.

"Bates engages in supportive relationships with staff, students and community members of varying ethnicities and socioeconomic backgrounds," according to his nomination. "He has consistently exhibited understanding, empathy and an ability to plan effectively for all students involved."

The National Dropout Prevention Centers/Network, located at Clemson University, serves as a research center and resource network for practitioners, researchers and policymakers to reshape school and community environments to meet the needs of youth in at-risk situations so they may receive quality educations and services necessary to graduate from high school. Information can be found online at www.dropoutprevention.org.

ROSLIN FRANKLIN PHYSICAL THERAPISTS: A CRUCIAL COMPONENT OF THE HEALTHCARE TEAM

Physical therapy services as part of a collaborative approach

When Dan Esta, 59, sprained his ankle while golfing, the pain was unbearable. When the pain started affecting his productivity at work, Dan's physician referred him to a physical therapist. Six months later, after working with a physical therapist who examined Dan and designed a specific exercise program related to his work and golf activities, Dan's ankle pain is gone, he is able to work productively, and his golf game has improved.

"People just don't put up with injuries anymore like they did 30 years ago," notes Dr. Dale Schuit, Chair of the Department of Physical Therapy at Rosalind

Franklin University of Medicine and Science (RFUMS). "They do something about it."

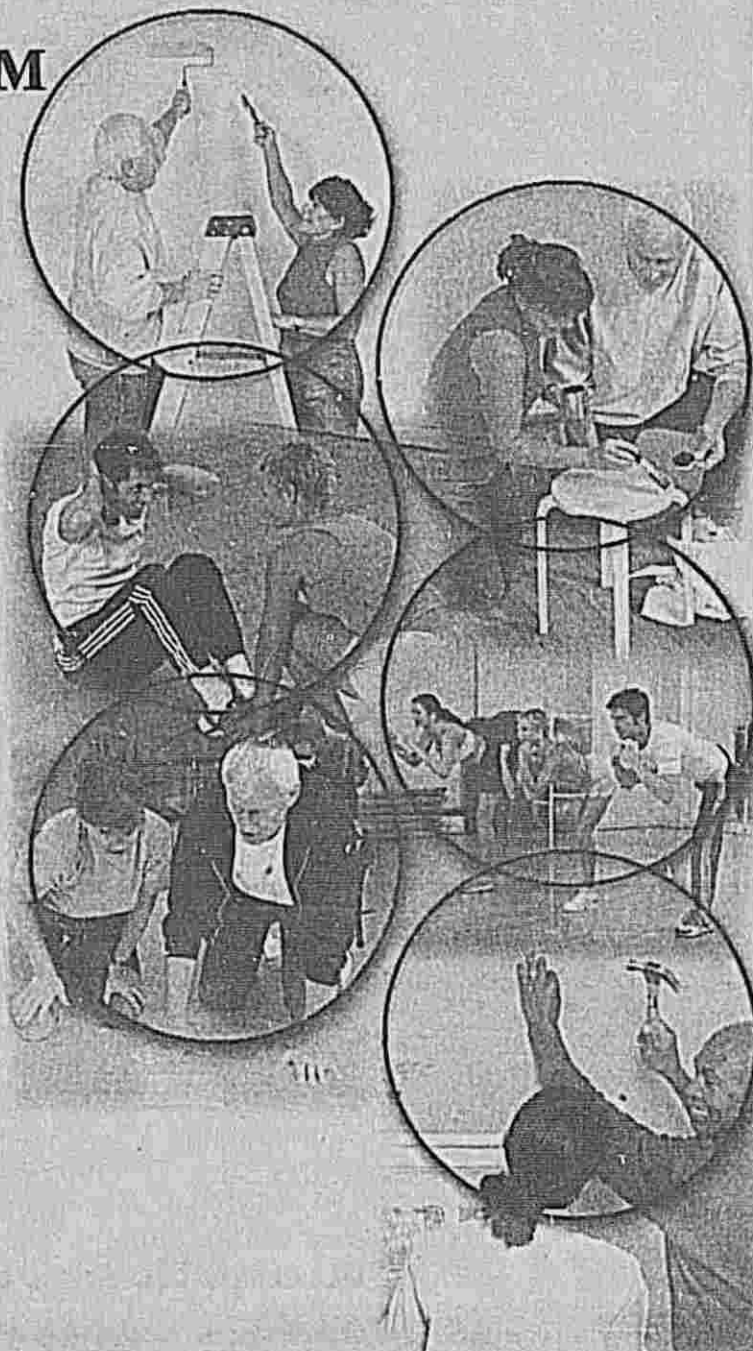

There is a lot more at stake today for people who do not do something about their injuries. For a high school athlete, a college scholarship might be hanging in the balance; for someone like Dan, their work performance and recreational activities may be affected; and an elderly person might simply be looking to lead a healthy and active life for a longer period of time. That people actively seek treatment for injuries is apparent in the rise in demand for physical therapists. According to the U.S. Department of Labor statistics, by 2012, the demand for physical therapists will increase by up to 35 percent.

Physical therapy—a distinct profession within the healthcare system—comprises a range of services offered to patients depending on their requirements and activity levels. Physical therapists evaluate and design specific treatment programs for patients of all ages with conditions such as joint sprains and strains, muscle injuries, pinched nerves, strokes, balance disorders, muscle weakness, arthritis, amputations, burns and wounds, and heart and lung problems. Physical therapists also help patients with acute or chronic pain. The main intent of any program developed by a physical therapist is "to create an individualized care plan that makes the patient an active participant in that plan," according to Dr. Schuit.

The integration of physical therapy with other healthcare services has been a prominent trend in health care in recent years. At The Clinics at Rosalind Franklin University in North Chicago, physical therapy services are offered as part of a collaborative approach, where the physician, nurse, physical therapist and other healthcare professionals discuss appropriate care for individual patients. "We certainly believe in a collaborative model at the University," said Dr. Schuit. "It allows us to offer patients more comprehensive care and improves communication among the team members. Our ultimate goal is to help each patient achieve their highest level of function in activities that are important to them."

PARIS meets WAUKEGAN?

Believe it or not—believe it—one of only three store in the United States to carry the latest eyeglasses from Paris (called "Parasites") is located right on Grand Avenue in Waukegan, Illinois. Opening their doors in October, 2005, The Optical Shack offers a hearty welcome to eyes from Waukegan, North Chicago, Gurnee, Zion, Libertyville, Grayslake and all other Lake County communities.

In addition to Parasites, The Optical Shack also sells other competitively priced designer glasses, such as Tommy Hilfiger, Guess, BCBGMAXAZRIA and Kenneth Cole. Their grand opening celebration (still in effect) includes a 20% discount on regular prices, two pairs of eyeglasses for $69, children's packages starting at $69 and some rare and unique sunglasses.

Current the business is only an optician-run store, but with the capability of filling prescription orders from anywhere. owner Joshua Leigh-liter (LICK-lighter) invites you to visit The Optical Shack, either in person, or their Web site—www.theopticalshack.com.

Pediatric depression

Depression can and does affect about 5% of children and teens, and can have devastating effects on functioning and development. Children who become depressed can become sullen, withdrawn or very irritable; lose motivation and interest in their normal activities including school.

This can negatively affect their relationship with family, friends, and teachers.

Adolescents may experience thoughts of death or even suicide.

In many cases, depression can be caused by chemical imbalances in the brain, and sometimes runs in families. Antidepressants are being used to treat childhood depression and one medication has been approved by the FDA for use in younger patients.

SOLID WASTE AGENCY OF LAKE COUNTY, IL

Help prevent accidental poisonings at home

One million children under the age of 5 are exposed to poisons every year, and in over 90% of the cases, these poisons are found in the home. Anything from cleaning products under the sink to pesticides stored in the garage can pose a threat to families.

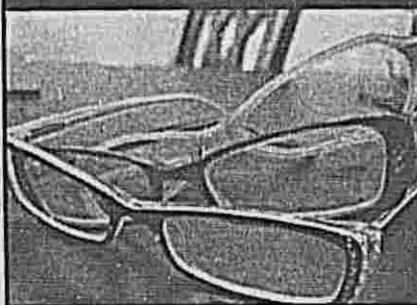

The Solid Waste Agency of Lake County (SWALCO) provides free Household Chemical Waste (HCW) collections where harmful products can be dropped off for safe disposal. These products should not be thrown away with your trash or poured down the drain.

Collections are for state residents only, and take place on Saturdays from 8:00 AM to 2:30 PM. Two more HCW collections will be held this year (November 5 in Zion and November 19 in Mundelein), and then the program will close for the winter. Residents do not have to live in the community where the collection takes place in order to participate.

A variety of common household materials can be brought to a HCW collection day, including: automotive products, lawn/garden chemicals, solvents, cleaning products, old medications and mercury. For more information, including a complete list of accepted materials and directions to events, call SWALCO at (847) 336-9340 or check the agency's website (www.swalco.org).

TAKE CARE OF YOUR EYES

Advanced Chiropractic & Acupuncture Center now offers Non-Invasive Acupuncture Techniques

Q. What is Acupuncture?

A. Acupuncture is a 5,000 year old Chinese system of natural healing (No drugs...No surgery), which is concerned with restoring proper energy flow to the various organs, glands, and tissues of the body on the premise that most diseases are the result of malfunction due to disrupted energies.

Explanation: The Chinese definition of Health is "All parts of the body are functioning normally," all 400 trillion parts. If there is an interruption of the transmission of energy flow of life force (called the Ch'i in Chinese), then organ malfunction, disease, pain and suffering are inevitable.

Q. Where does the interruption of energy flow occur?

A. In either or both locations: (1) In the channels of energy flow, which are located through the body, just beneath the skin surface; (2) In the spinal column where vertebrae may become misaligned, thereby compressing vital nerve trunks.

Q. Are there other causes of disease besides those associated with the interference of the transmission of energy flow?

A. Yes, of course. Psychosomatic states, hereditary factors, poisons, adverse environmental conditions, injury, germs, malnutrition, etc. are all disease producing.

Q. How do you detect the disturbance in the energy flow within a patient?

A. By many methods, including certain signs, symptoms, pain spots, organ reflex points, and by pulse or instrumental findings.

Q. What is non-invasive acupuncture?

A. This non-invasive acupuncture treatment (electroacupuncture) is performed with electrical stimuli on the key meridian points of the body where key energy flow points are used to produce results. By reading results of stimulated pressure points, proper treatment can be determined.

Q. What are some of the conditions commonly treated by acupuncture?

A. Textbook listed conditions run into the hundreds. Typical ailments usually responding to acupuncture health care includes: headaches, tics, spasms, muscular rheumatism, shoulder and arm pain, tennis elbow, osteoarthritis, rheumatism, ulcers, stomach problems, diarrhea, hepatitis, asthma, bronchitis, shortness of breath, coughs, certain types of heart trouble, abnormal blood pressure, hemorrhoids, bladder irritation, bed wetting, certain kidney problems, female disorders, impotence, glaucoma (sometimes), weak eyesight, hay fever, loss of smell, tonsillitis, loss of hearing, skin conditions, and even nervous or psychiatric factors based on the fact that often mental problems arise from physical disorders.

The above list may seem long as though acupuncture were a Panacea. The truth is that most textbooks list over two hundred diseases. Please be mindful of the fact that acupuncture is not like one drug used for one condition, but on the contrary it is a complete healing art within itself, concerned with the systems of the body such as nerves, circulatory, digestive, respiratory, eliminatory, reproductive, hormonal, musculoskeletal, etc. and seeks to correct health problems within those systems.

Q. Out of, say, 10 patients accepted for acupuncture health care, how many usually respond favorably?

A. On the average, 8. Two out of ten fail to respond favorably for a variety of reasons. Advanced age, severity of the condition, irreversible tissue damage, etc. are deterrents to recovery.

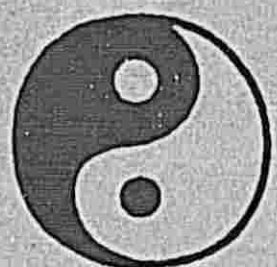

Q. Are spinal adjusting treatments necessary with acupuncture?

A. Absolutely. Spinal adjusting is part of the acupuncture health care. World authorities, including Feliz Mann, M.D. of England; Paul Nogier, M.D. of France, and Kunzo Nagayama, M.D. of Japan are very emphatic on this aspect of "getting well". Dr. Mann states that many internal diseases are cured by the spinal adjustment alone. Leaving the adjustment (chiropractic) out of the treatment plan invites failure.

Symptoms of hearing loss article

Recognizing hearing loss — and getting help

A person's hearing ability usually deteriorates over long periods of time, frequently during a 25- to 30-year span. Because of its gradual onset, hearing loss is difficult to detect. Often the person with the hearing loss fails to recognize the problem; rather, it's family members or friend — especially someone who hasn't been with the person for a while.

Following are some of the most common signs of a hearing loss:

- Asking people to speak more loudly or slowly
- Frequently asking others to repeat themselves
- Hearing people talk, but not understanding what they're saying
- Particular trouble understanding children's or other high-pitched voices
- Difficulty hearing on the telephone
- Unable to hear the telephone or doorbell ringing
 - Family members complaining about the TV or radio being turned up too loud
 - Difficulty hearing conversation while riding in the car
 - Avoiding social situations because of background noise and difficulty hearing conversation
 - Lack of participation in meetings and other gatherings
 - Feelings of being left out of discussions or "people are talking about me behind my back"
 - Feelings that loved ones are "treating me differently" or "making decisions without my participation"
 - Spending increasing amounts of time alone

Although the symptoms of a hearing loss may be obvious to others, hearing-impaired individuals frequently do not admit that they have a problem. Consequently, they often don't get help until their quality of life has declined significantly or until a spouse or other family member pushes them into action.

Getting help, most often in the form of hearing aids, can have positive and measurable implications. This is substantiated by a study entitled "The Consequences of Untreated Hearing Loss in Older Persons." Hearing aid wearers in the study reported improvements in several areas of their lives, including relationships at home (66%), feelings about themselves (60%) and feelings about life overall (62%).

This article is provided as a public service by Miracle-Ear®, who operates 22 Miracle-Ear Centers and Sears Hearing Aid Centers in Chicagoland region.

Vista Health – Changing today to meet future healthcare needs

Serving Northern Illinois/Southern Wisconsin

Vista Health is a network of two hospitals, a stand-alone day surgery and treatment center, and several locations for imaging and patient therapy. During 2005, Victory

Memorial Hospital, located on the north shore of Lake Michigan in Waukegan, has been the center of advancement for Vista Health. Since the February opening of Vista Health's second modern cardiac catheterization laboratory, twice as many patients have benefited from cardiac diagnostic and interventional procedures. Similarly, the opening of new endoscopy suites for colonoscopies and other gastrointestinal procedures has greatly increased the number of patients achieving better GI health due to diagnosis and treatment at Victory Memorial Hospital, Lake County's only Five-Star designated hospital by HealthGrades® for GI services.

Vista Health Victory Memorial Hospital has also completed the renovation and expansion of its outpatient infusion therapy center. Located on the first floor with easy access from both the main entrance and the Cardiac Services entrance, outpatients can receive their infusion treatments in a calm, dedicated space with personal TVs for their viewing.

Expanding to meet growing healthcare needs

New patient unit

Scheduled to open in December, this new unit at Victory Memorial Hospital will provide an additional 30 semi-private beds and 11 private rooms for patients with medical and post-surgical healthcare needs.

"The new patient unit along with our expanded ER will help us comfortably accommodate the increasing number of patients who are selecting Victory Memorial Hospital for services," said Barbara J. Martin, president and chief executive officer of Vista Health.

Expanded emergency department level II trauma center

The expanded ER will provide 31 treatment areas, two triage stations along with new stations for ER registration and a large waiting area for families. Treatment rooms for seriously injured or ill patients will be modernized and current "fast track" treatment areas will be expanded, updated and relocated. Additionally, the ER-dedicated imaging area will be moved to a more central location complete with new x-ray equipment.

Per Tammie Finn, Chief Nursing Officer, "With modernized treatment rooms along with expanded triage, registration and family waiting areas, our ER can efficiently provide the best of care 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to those who seek emergency services."

Vista M.R. Institute and the Vista Health Surgery and Treatment Center in Lindenhurst provide outpatient "same day" surgical services and "no wait" outpatient diagnostic and laboratory services

Lake County's sole provider of inpatient rehabilitation and behavioral health services

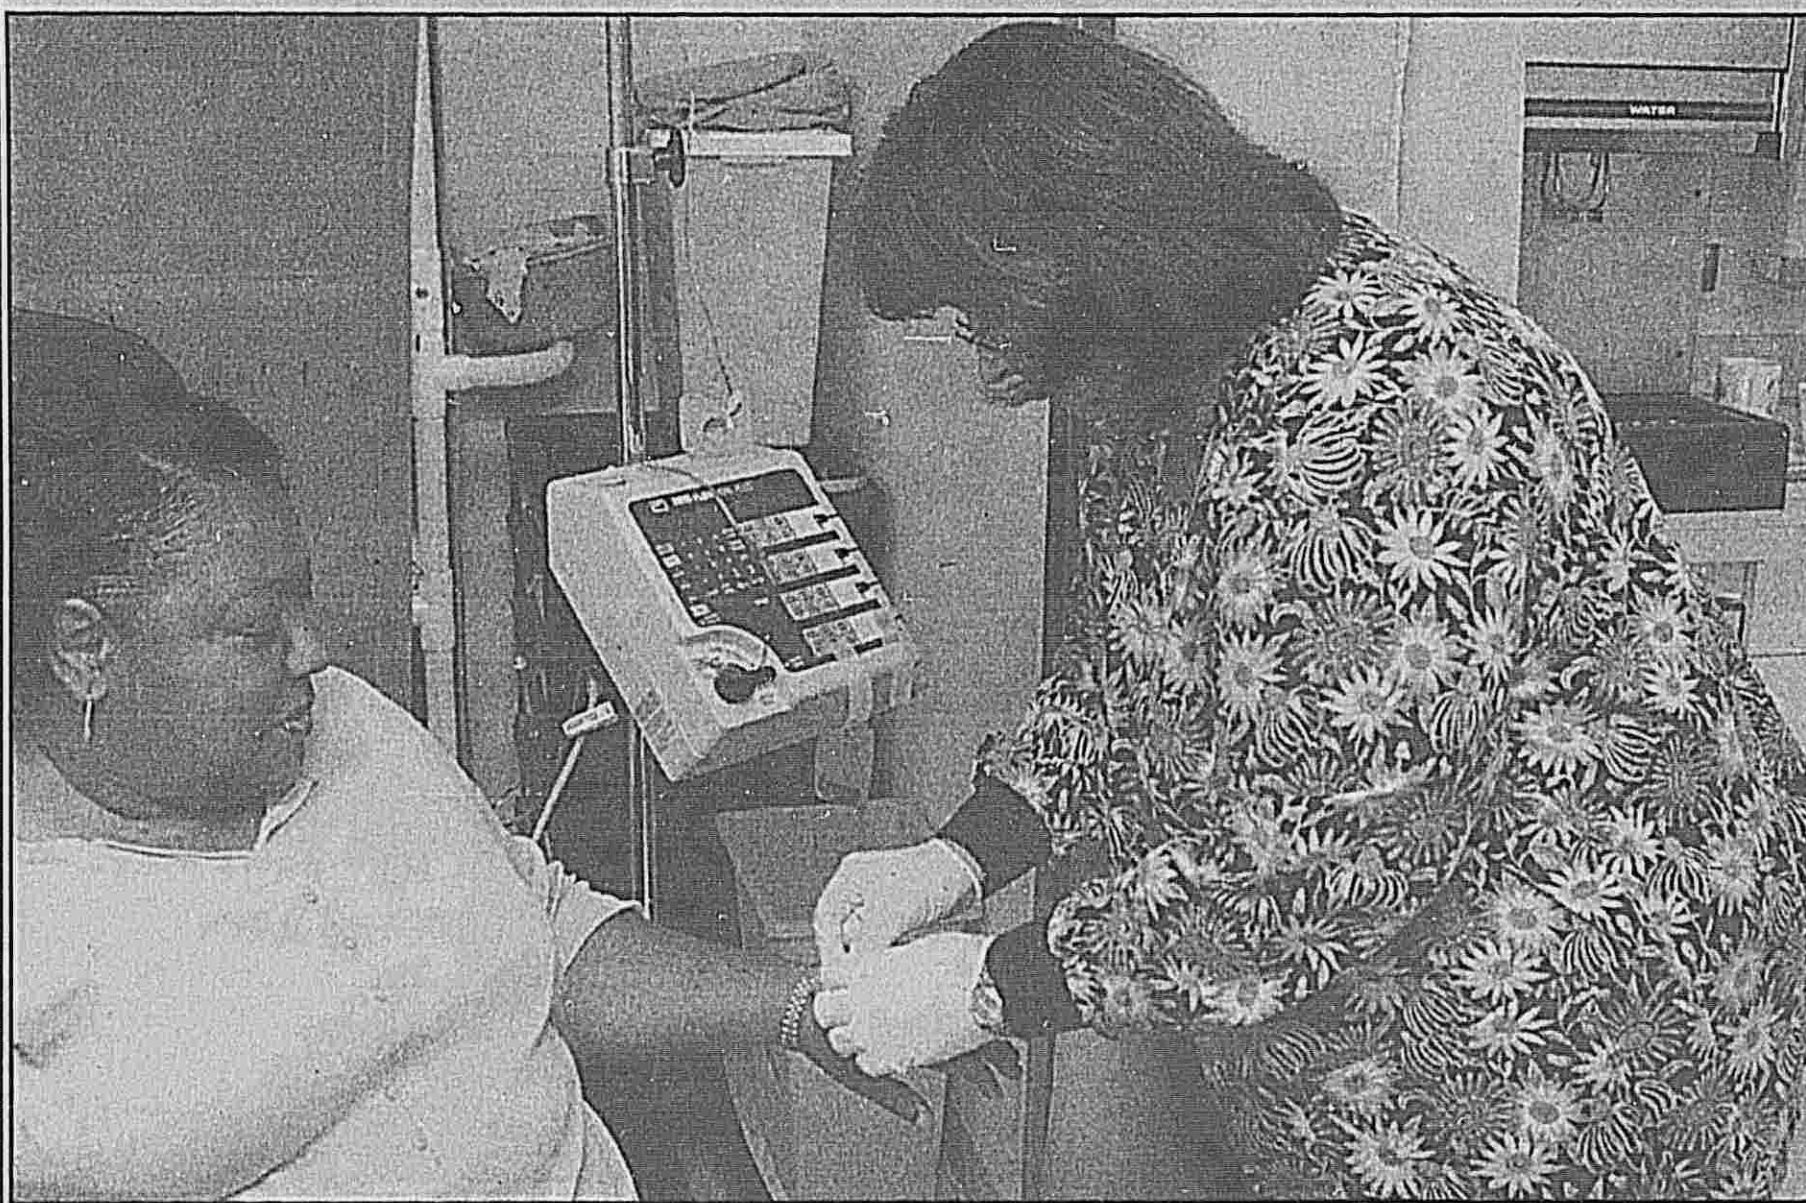

Vista Health continues to build on the traditions of its hospitals, which have served the area for more than 100 years. In July St. Therese Medical Center's role in Lake County was defined to encompass their inpatient rehabilitation services and inpatient behavioral health services. St.

Therese's accreditation by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF) signifies that they have substantially met rigorous internationally recognized standards for inpatient rehabilitation during on-site surveys. Concerning behavioral health, treatment options for patients of all ages include inpatient care, partial hospitalization and intensive outpatient care.

Additional services for Vista health's patients

Vista M.R. Institute and the Vista Health Surgery and Treatment Center in Lindenhurst provide outpatient "same day" surgical services and "no wait" outpatient diagnostic and laboratory services, including x-rays, MRI, mammograms and blood tests. Physical rehabilitation is also available as well as occupational and speech therapy. Additional Vista Health locations offer Hospice, aqua therapy, occupational, speech and physical therapy and more. Visit www.vistahealth.com for additional information.

Quality care is a hallmark of Vista Health's staff.

Vein Clinics of America opens in Gurnee

ein Clinics of America (VCA), the largest medical practice in the United States specializing exclusively in the treatment of vein disorders, recently opened its 23rd Center of Excellence in Gurnee at 1790 Nations Dr. Since 1981, VCA has specialized in all aspects of vein disease, from spider veins to varicose veins to leg ulcers.

Varicose vein disease is more than just a cosmetic problem. Ignoring it can result in symptoms such as pain, fatigue, itching, burning and swelling. Since vein disease is progressive, it will only get worse if left untreated.

Recent advancements in varicose vein treatment have been significant, as a result treatment has never been better and with today's favorable insurance coverage, it has never been more accessible.

VCA's comprehensive non-surgical treatment approach includes Endovenous Laser Treatment (ELT) and ultrasound-guided sclerotherapy. Sclerotherapy is a precise, microinjection procedure that uses a medication to seal the abnormal veins. ELT achieves the same result by using laser energy delivered through a tiny fiber that is inserted into the abnormal vein. Neither option requires hospitalization or surgery and is performed in the physician's office. The patient can be back on their feet resuming normal activities the next day, or even sooner.

To schedule a consultation, call 1-800-660-VEIN or visit veinclinics.com.

Clinical trials:

WHAT SHOULD YOU KNOW?

Medications must go through clinical trials to prove they help patients before they can be sold. Patients who take part in clinical studies of mental illness hope the research will produce knowledge about the disease itself and further treatment options. Participation is always voluntary and should occur after proper consideration of all facts available; this process is called "informed consent"

Federal regulations and guidelines govern proper conduct of clinical trials. "Good clinical practice" GCP mandates "the rights, safety, and well-being of the study subject are the most important considerations and should prevail over interest of science and society."

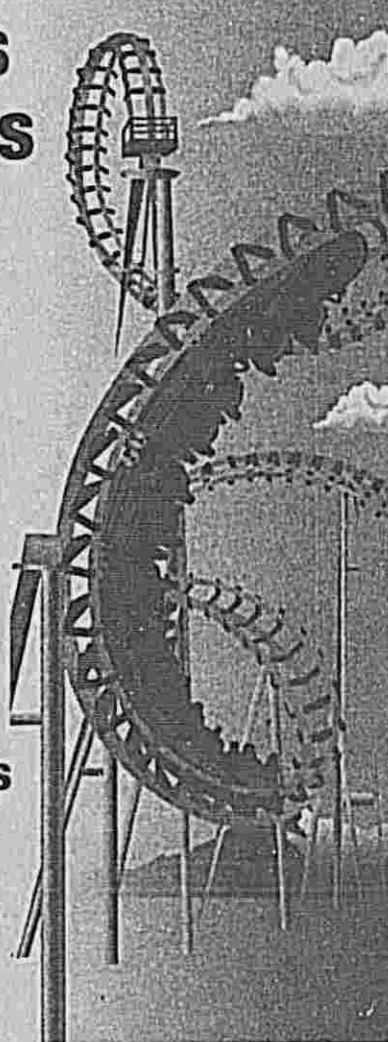

Bipolar Disorder Affects Over 2 Million Americans

Bipolar Disorder, or Manic-Depressive Disorder, is a condition that can cause extreme mood changes. Although these mood changes can be severe, treatments are available.

A medical research study is being conducted to evaluate the clinical response and side effects of an approved treatment.

To qualify you must be 18 years or older and have a diagnosis or symptoms of Bipolar Disorder.

Qualified participants will receive study related medical evaluations and study medications at no cost.

"After my first daughter was born I tried Seattle Sutton's Healthy Eating. I was successful in losing weight because the meals were delicious and convenient. Several years later I had more children and gained a tremendous amount of weight. I then returned to SSHE because I knew how well it had worked for me in the past. I lost 70 pounds in 8 months and have kept it off for 7 years. I now maintain my weight with daily exercise and with Seattle Sutton's Healthy Eating." — Eileen Spevak, R.N.

55 YEARS of SERVICE to YOU

Lake Forest Hospital offers all-digital Mammography

Lake Forest Hospital Radiation Oncologists Marc Posner, MD, (left) and Joseph Imperato, MD, offer cancer patients the highest level of expertise and the widest array of oncology technologies.

This year's observance of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month was marked by the recent addition of even more advanced technology at Lake Forest Hospital (LFH). Among other things, Breast Cancer Awareness Month stresses the importance of early detection of the disease through screening mammography. During October, women are encouraged to receive or sign up for a screening mammogram.

Lake Forest Hospital now offers all-digital mammography at all of its radiology locations:

- The Breast Care Center at Lake Forest Hospital
- The Outpatient & Acute Care Center in Grayslake (1475 E. Belvidere Road)
- Gurnee Brookside Medical Building (36100 N. Brookside Drive)
- Vernon Hills Medical Building (870 West End Court)

The advantages of digital mammography include improved patient care with greater speed and efficiency. Digital mammograms also are easier to archive and retrieve with no loss of detail or associated patient information. And, it's easy to schedule a digital mammogram. Simply call Lake Forest Hospital's central scheduling number, (847) 535-8000, for an appointment at the location nearest you.

For those diagnosed with cancer, Lake Forest Hospital's treatment options now include Breast IMRT, available in the Center for Advanced Radiation Medicine. In 2002, LFH became the first hospital in Lake County to install IMRT, a groundbreaking cancer treatment that allows the delivery of more cancer-fighting energy at the tumors, while minimizing radiation to healthy tissue. Now, this cutting-edge technology is the latest option available to breast cancer patients at Lake Forest Hospital.

What's more, it's used by two physicians whose expertise is unsurpassed in Lake County. Dr. Marc Posner helped to design IMRT and Dr. Joseph Imperato, a past president of the American Cancer Society's Illinois chapter, has placed a special emphasis on breast cancer during his nearly 20 years at Lake Forest Hospital.

4D CT Technology is Here

The cancer-fighting options these two highly professional, caring specialists have to choose from continue to grow – and is now the largest available in Lake County. This past summer, LFH became the only area hospital to offer 4D CT, which allows doctors to see the real-time movement of tumors or organs in relation to other normal structures in the body. This allows for a more precise, customized targeting of radiation at the tumor in cases where motion is a factor such as in the lungs.

For more information on the truly advanced caring options available to cancer patients at Lake Forest Hospital, call the Center for Advanced Radiation Medicine at (847) 535-6135.

Every mammogram is digital here.

And
nowhere else.

Lake Forest Hospital is the only hospital in Lake County that offers all-digital mammography. Other hospitals still rely primarily on conventional film mammograms for screening, but Lake Forest Hospital is all-digital at all four of our imaging locations. And it matters. A groundbreaking study now reported in the New England Journal of Medicine finds that two out of three women will get a more accurate screening with a digital mammogram, because the digital image can be computer-manipulated and assessed in ways film cannot. The extra accuracy of digital mammography was a big investment for us, but we know how much it matters to you. And we care. Call (847) 535-8000 for an appointment.
